Here We Go Again

As the last days of summer came to a close, students busily prepared for the opening of school. Last minute trips to the beach were a final activity for some students, while lounging around local swimming pools soaking up the last summer sun occupied other students' time. Cruising around town trying to find something exciting to do and going to parties and movies accounted for much of the night life of the last days of summer.

Much too soon, the dreaded day arrived. Some students came to school in newly-purchased clothes while others simply wore old jeans and t-shirts. The more prepared students had already anticipated the type of school supplies needed and came to school with brand new spirals, notebooks, bookbags, pens and pencils. Others waited until the last possible minute to make these important purchases.

Adjusting To New Roles

Within a few days, the adjustments had been made. The sophomores grew accustomed to the large crowds in the hallways, the juniors realized with some dismay that they were neither the youngest class nor the oldest and settled into their middle position with anticipation of the hard work ahead. The seniors took advantage of their position as leaders of the school and set good examples for the other classes to follow.

Soon the clubs began to reorganize by having meetings and trying to recruit as many members as possible. With 36 clubs to choose from, almost all the students became involved in at least one if not more. While the clubs played an important role in upholding Spartan High's image of success, the sports program helped to maintain this image as well. New additions to the coaching staff helped to provide a stronger athletic program and enabled all teams to represent Spartan High with pride. Pep rallies led by the cheerleaders brought out everyone's spirit which carried over into the games as the fans cheered the teams to victory.

Academic Program Continues Success

As in the past, the academics program at Spartanburg High School proved to be one of the top in the state due to a highly qualified faculty and a varied range of courses from which to choose. Courses offered were designed, as in years past, to meet the needs of all students; from vocational to college preparatory. A final change from the quin system to the semester brought about mixed feelings from the students, but the teachers were unanimous in the opinion that the semester system was better for the overall program.

The Power Of Gold

Being one of the largest schools in the state does not automatically make a school one of the best. This distinction is earned when students, faculty, and staff work together to achieve success. At Spartanburg High School THE POWER OF GOLD is in evidence. The power is represented by the school colors of blue and gold. It is demonstrated by the school spirit shown at pep rallies and games. Recognition of faculty and students for scholastic, musical, and art abilities prove the power exists in the academic program. Clubs and organizations show the power while serving the school and community. Successful sports teams are additional evidence that THE POWER OF GOLD exists and does indeed make Spartanburg High School one of the best.

Student Life

Homecoming, pep rallies, bonfires, assemblies, club meetings, exams, lunch, and, of course, classes. These activities were only a few of the many aspects of student life at Spartan High. Something exciting was always happening in which everyone was involved at one time or another. The variety of students participating in all these activities helped to create the chaotic atmosphere which flooded the halls each day.

Besides the routine interests, a number of extra-curricular activities were also available which accounted for a large portion of the students' time. Between these class activities and extra-curricular activities, students rarely found time or energy to devote to anything else. Despite the different interests of the students, Spartanburg High School once again proved its power by offering something to interest everyone.

The Last Roundup

After weeks of decisions, preparations, and anticipation, the spectacular and long-awaited event finally came to pass; Homecoming '81. The theme corresponded to the rebirth of western styles and was entitled The Last Roundup. Escorted by Keith Cox, Avis Weathers was crowned the 1980-81 Homecoming queen at halftime of the football game. Her honor attendants were Donna Fulbright and Trina Steen.

The pre-Homecoming activities that took place the week before the actual game proved to be as exciting as Homecoming itself. The constant rivalry between Seniors, Juniors, and Sophomores was as strong as ever throughout the entire week. The Seniors came out on top at the end of the week when the competition finally ended. At the Thursday night bonfire, the Seniors won the pyramid building contest, while the Sophomores won the sack race and the Juniors won the tug-of-war. Seniors also won the spirit stick at the pre-game pep rally. When the winners of the float and spirit chain link contest were announced at the game the next night, the Seniors were once again victorious. In spite of the rivalry and competition, Homecoming generally brought a feeling of genuine school spirit that was evident in the students and at the activities that occurred throughout the entire week.

The Wild Wild West Revisited

To a bystander witnessing the Homecoming parade, it probably looked like a band of actors from the cast of The Wild Wild West in an array of Western costumes. The students did take advantage of the theme to show off all their Western clothes.

The parade began in the First Presbyterian Church parking lot and ended with a pep rally at the Spartanburg Memorial Auditorium. The activities that took place and the sights that were viewed in between these two locations were too numerous to name. Class floats with students following behind, convertibles carrying Homecoming queen candidates, and all sorts of decorated cars and vehicles were representative of the parade scene. The main event of the Homecoming parade was the pep rally that immediately followed, spurring everyone up for the big game later that evening against the Rock Hill Bearcats.

Pep Rallies Boost School Spirit

What did the majority of the students look forward to each week of a home game? The answer is obvious; the pep rally. The enthusiasm shown at pep rallies was remarkable. The school spirit exhibited was evidence of the support that students had for their team and school. Skits performed by the Varsity cheerleaders sometimes included other students and provided entertainment in addition to the cheers and pom-pom routines. Of course, the band was there to perform and also contributed to the excitement.

It was a common practice for some students to shorten or give up their lunch periods in order to get a seat down front where the action was. But no matter where they sat, students at the pep rallies showed spirit and vitality that could not be missed or ignored.

Outstanding Individual Achievements

As in years past, SHS students were once again acknowledged for their academic achievements. Various colleges and organizations recognized the abilities of many Spartan High students and honored them with much-appreciated awards and scholarships. Some of these awards included Wofford and Furman scholars, National Merit semi-finalists, National Merit Letters of Commendation, and Optimist Teenagers of the Year, to name a few.

National Merit Letters of Commendation: Buford Mobley, Cathy Yaden, David Hudgens, Lucia Davis, Susan Spieth, Jason Lindsay, and Edward McCall.

Sewanee Award of Excellence: Laura Kistler and Jeff Hall.

Davidson Stuart Scholar Semi-Finalist: Duncan Alford.

National Achievement Scholarship Program for Outstanding Negro Students: Buford Mobley, Doris Gaffney, and Darrell Jefferies.

National Merit Semi-Finalists: First Row: Lisa Capell, Rogers Weed, Bob Patton, Duncan Alford. Second Row: Paul Burgess, Michael Stortz, Leigh Watson, Jim Karegeannes.

Milliken Scholars: Ellen Lanford, Ani Miyares, LeAnne Rowland, Marie Elam.

Girls' State: Lucia Davis, Doris Gaffney.

Presbyterian College Jr. Fellows: Dimitri Demopoulos, Leigh Watson, Michael Stortz, Lucia Davis.

Furman Scholars: Susan Spieth, Ani Miyares, Keith Cox, David Hudgens.

Century III Leader Winner: Lucia Davis.

Living For The Weekend

When the final bell rang on Friday afternoon, the halls seemed noisier than usual and the parking lots emptied quicker than normal. The reason for this was quite obvious; the weekend!

Most students could be seen throughout the day on Friday making plans for the weekend with their friends. Mr. Gatti's pizza restaurant was a popular gathering place after football and basketball games. The main attraction of Mr. Gatti's was the giant television screen.

Another popular activity was going to the movies. Whether it was a horror movie, comedy, or love story, movies attracted students on Friday and Saturday nights.

During football and basketball season, many students showed up to support their favorite teams, and then went to popular places such as The Beacon, Pizza Inn, Pizza Hut, or maybe even a party. Whatever the students did, it was certain that they made the most of the weekends so that they could return to school on Monday with pleasant memories.

The Pizza Hut is a popular place for some students to hang out on the weekends.

A Welcome Break In The Daily Routine

As the senior lunch bell rang, seniors took advantage of one of their privileges by leaving class one minute earlier than underclassmen. Doing this enabled them to beat the crowd and get in the front of the lunch line. The lunch lines filled quickly and instead of waiting to get a hot meal, many students chose to bring a bag lunch from home. However, a variety of hot lunches and a salad bar were available to those who wanted it.

The students who chose not to eat lunch at all usually gathered in the lobby, or on the front steps and courtyards to discuss the day's gossip. Lunchtime was an important time because it enabled students to see and talk with friends whom they seldom saw. It also gave people a chance to discuss the day's activities, and to make plans for the weekends. Many people flocked around the guidance office, inquiring about college information and obtaining SAT forms.

Seniors were allowed to eat in the Senior Lounge for most of the year as another privilege; however, carbonated drinks were no longer allowed to be sold in the vending machines due to a new state law. In whatever way students spent their lunch period, it was a necessary and important part of the day, not only for eating, but for being with friends as well.

The Main Event

One of the big events of the 1980-81 school year was the Presidential Election. Almost all the history and government classes followed the election from the primaries to the nominating conventions, the campaigning, and finally, the results of the election.

Some students worked at campaign offices for local political candidates, and others wore buttons displaying their political preferences. As the election day neared, a mock election was held at the school by the BLUE PRINT to see who would win the Presidential race. At the amazement to some, President Carter came out on top, with Reagan following close behind.

However, in the real election, the exact opposite occurred. Ronald Reagan ended up winning by a large margin, and went into office on January 20, 1981 to begin the new term. Some students felt that if the hostages had been released prior to the election, President Carter would have pulled through as the winner. However, this was not the case.

Masses Of Students Bombard Hallways

Class change once again brought masses of students to the halls. With only six minutes to get from class to class, students hurriedly stopped at their lockers to leave books from their previous classes and to pick up books for their next ones. Some unfortunate students didn't have any classes near their lockers, so they had to carry a large pile of books with them all day. However, a few students solved this problem by sharing lockers with a friend.

While some students were busy going to their lockers, others used their time to talk to friends, stop at nearby water fountains, or spend a few minutes with a boy friend or girl friend. In whatever manner students spent their time, the six minutes always seemed to pass too quickly. As a result, many students could be seen running down the halls trying desperately to be on time. Then the dreaded bell would ring, another class would begin and students would impatiently wait for the next bell so they could crowd the halls once more.

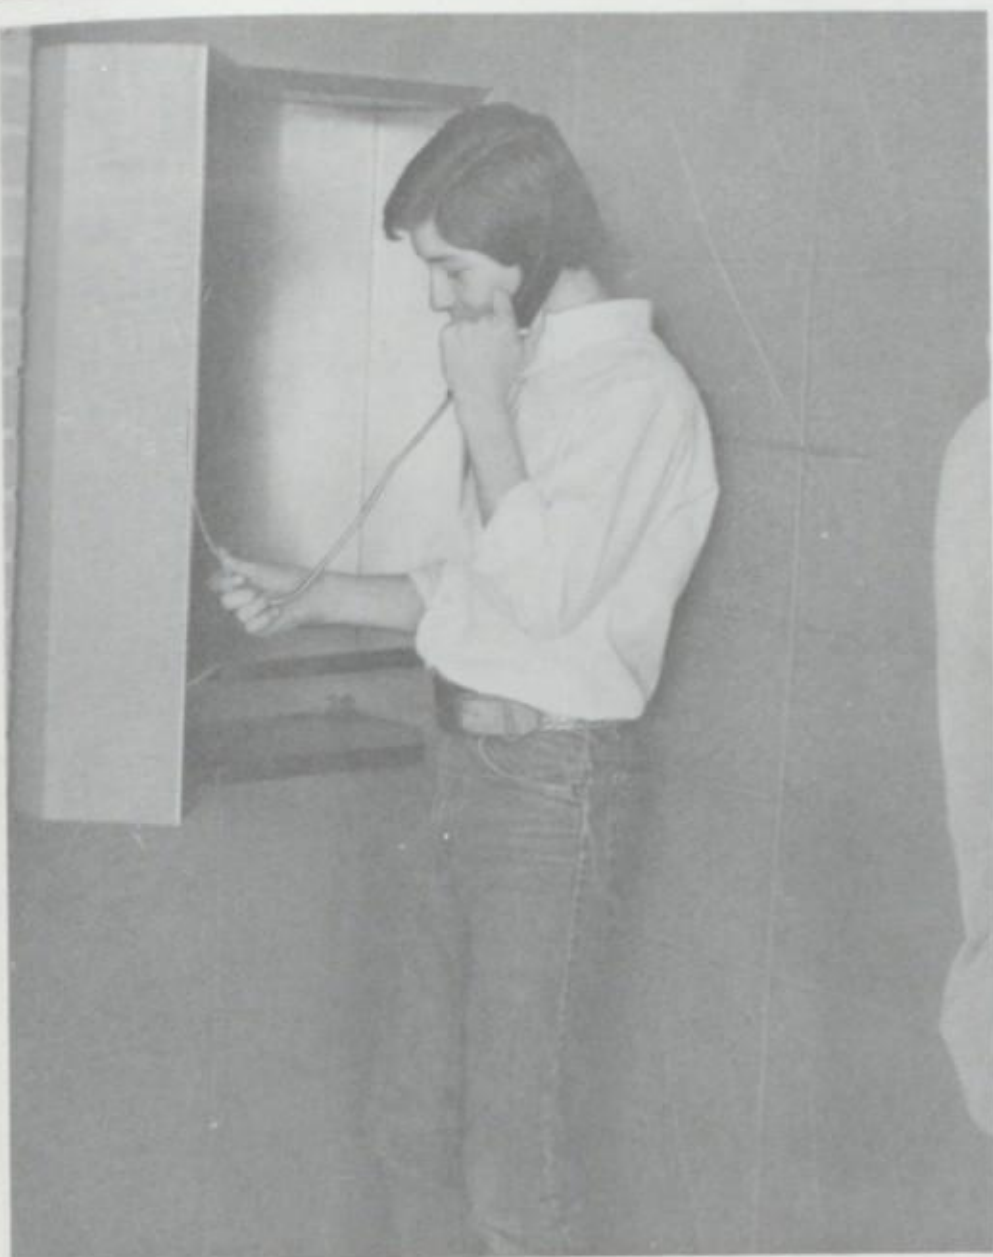

Not one second late, art students flee out of the doors to their next class.

As a waitress at McDonald's, Dawn Mayo sees many SHS students come in to order food or to just talk.

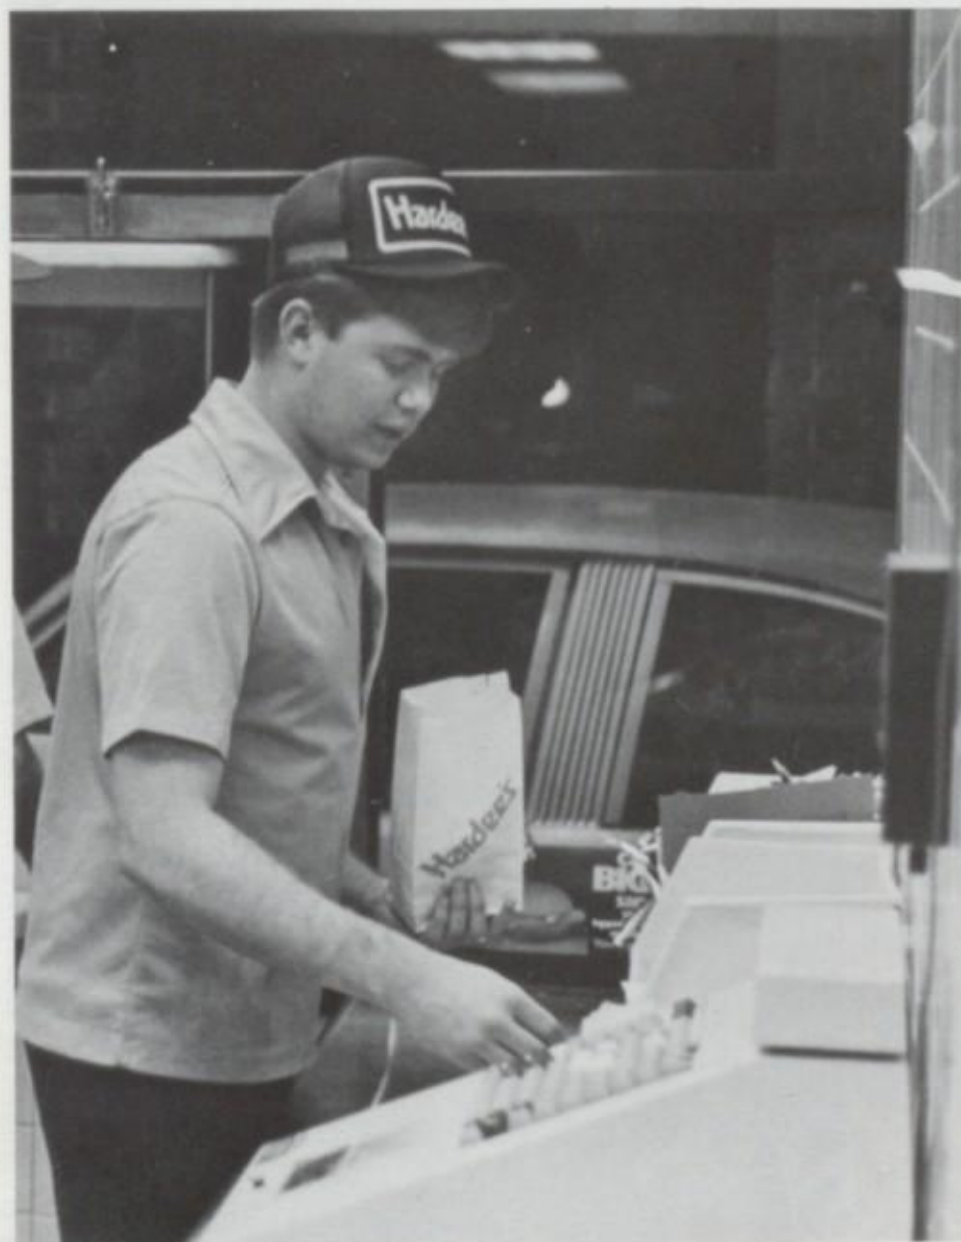

Worthwhile Sacrifices

While some students went directly home after school, others were not so lucky. After-school jobs occupied much of the time of Spartan High School's students. Most of the part-time employees agreed that the extra pocket money was nice and even necessary, but all agreed that it was not much fun to work on weekends. While their friends went to sporting events, movies, parties, or even over to other people's houses, these students had to work and uphold certain responsibilities.

Popular places of employment included most of the fast-food restaurants such as Hardee's, McDonald's, Wendy's, and Burger King. Working as a cashier or a bag boy at supermarkets was another popular job, as was waitressing. Even though the working students had to sacrifice a lot of spare time, most agreed that the positive effects of working definitely outweighed the negative.

Glancing over samples, Amy Farmer, Pam Randall, and Elizabeth Demo anxiously anticipate graduation.

Graduation Plans Highlight Senior Year

After eleven years of school, most seniors were definitely ready to graduate. Many preparations had to be made, however. College applications had to be filled out and submitted for those planning further education, and job applications had to be filled out for those planning to enter the job market. Some students took advantage of their senior year to take as few courses as necessary for graduation, while others went ahead and participated in the Advanced Placement program hoping to gain college credit for their hard work.

Senior privileges included use of the Senior Lounge and vending machines during Senior Study Hall and lunch, leaving class one minute early for lunch, and getting out of school three minutes earlier than the underclassmen. In addition to these privileges, seniors did not have to take final exams and finished school one week earlier than the rest of the students.

The Senior year was filled with many little things which had to be done. Seniors ordered rings either at the end of their Junior year or at the beginning of their Senior year, ordered graduation announcements in the middle of December, and most importantly, were measured for caps and gowns in the middle of the year. All these activities brought the Seniors closer to that seemingly unreachable goal; graduation. And after it was all over, all the years of hard work suddenly seemed worthwhile.

Students read the material assigned to them during Mrs. Anne Arbuckle's English class.

Working to perfect their typing skills, Ted Childers and Bobbie Johnson attentively do their class assignments.

Although some students do not like to admit it, the academics program is the most important part of the school process. Many students would like to do away with English and Math and spend all their time playing basketball or talking to friends in study hall. However, the purpose of school is to learn and Spartan High once again did a great job in providing a varied academic program aimed at meeting all students' needs. Whether the students' interests or talents lay in math or art, the academics department upheld Spartan High's quality tradition by having courses to please everyone's interests.

A.P. Presents Challenge

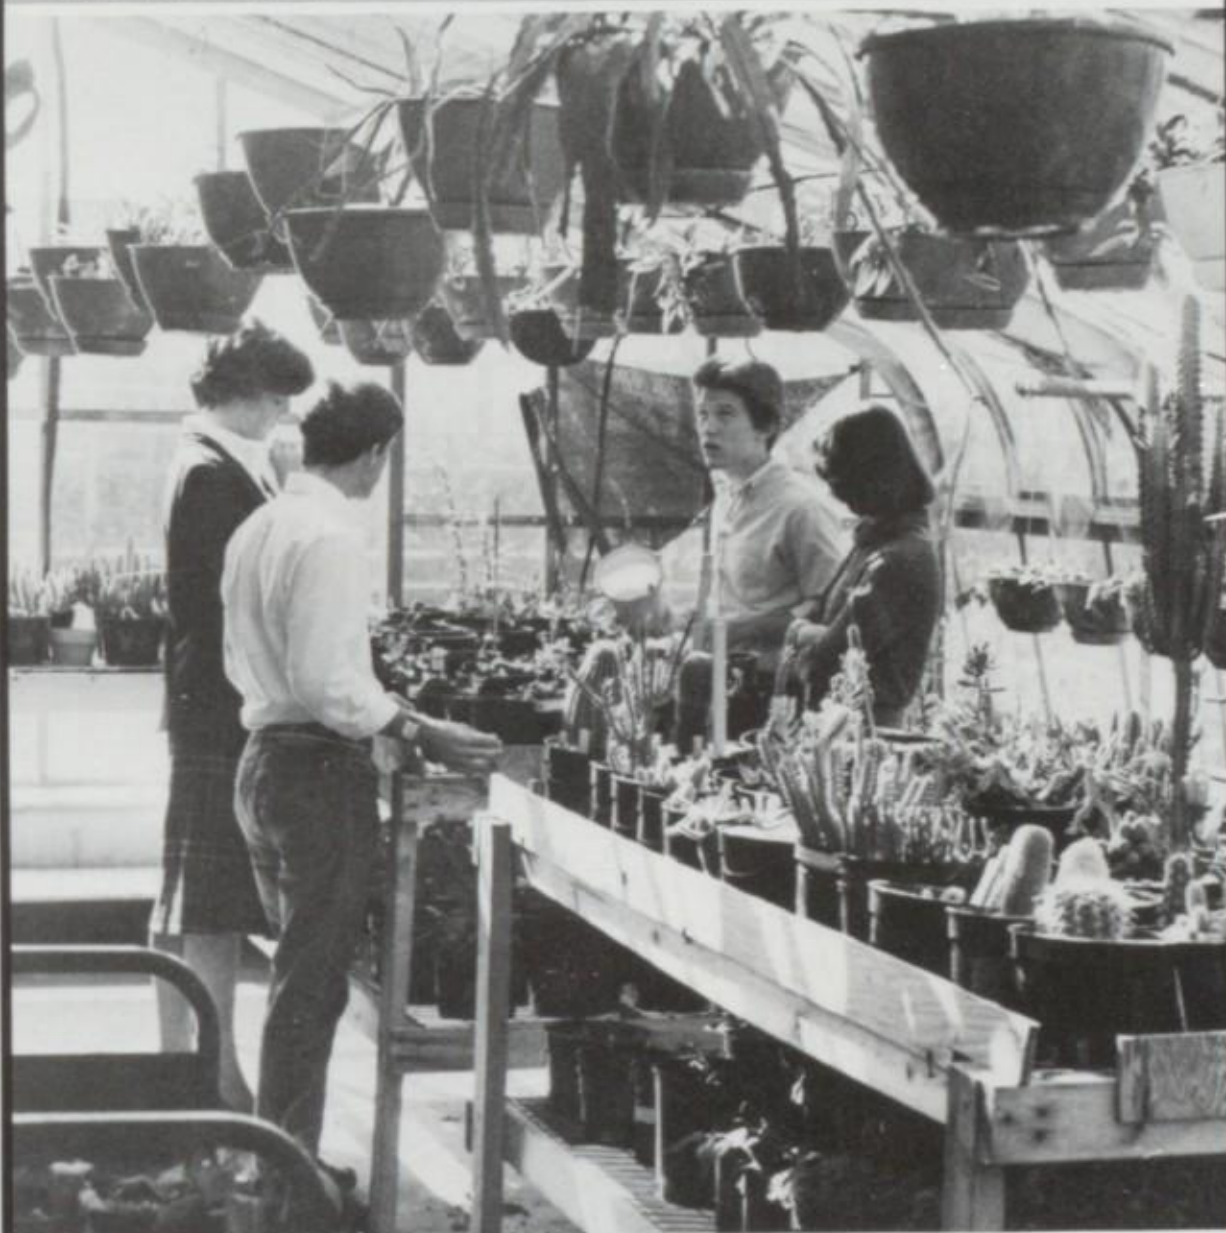

Spartanburg High School offered eight different Advanced Placement courses to college bound juniors and seniors. Each course prepared the student to take the A.P. test in the spring. A good score on an A.P. test can earn students several hours of college credit.

Because an A.P. course is geared toward the college-bound student and is generally more difficult than regular-level courses, an extra point is added to the grade point average for an A or B earned. A grade below a B does not earn extra credit, but college admissions officials take into account the extra work involved.

The eight A.P. courses offered at Spartanburg High School include calculus, English, American history, European history, biology, chemistry, physics, and French. Although there are no A.P. courses offered in Latin, Spanish, or German, administrators hope to restructure these courses so that third year students will be able to take the A.P. tests next year.

Thinking about his math assignment, Ritchie Pascoe waits for the bell to ring.

Calculation And Confusion

The Math Department made a few changes. For instance, there are four new teachers: Mr. Wayne Anthony, Mr. Charles Alexander, Mr. John Davis and Mr. James Kilbreth. These teachers have all had a successful first year and hopefully they will continue teaching at Spartanburg High for many years to come.

Mrs. Jessie Small, who is chairman of the Math Department, had many responsibilities. She had to coordinate tests between teachers who teach the same subjects, call meetings, inform the math teachers of staff meetings, visit teachers in her department and assign buddy teachers. She also had the responsibility of supervising the department budget and distributing textbooks and materials.

Mrs. Small believed the PSAT-SAT help sessions went extremely well this year. Many teachers helped with the program and many students showed an interest in the sessions. She said that the after school sessions helped the students prepare for the tests and improve their scores.

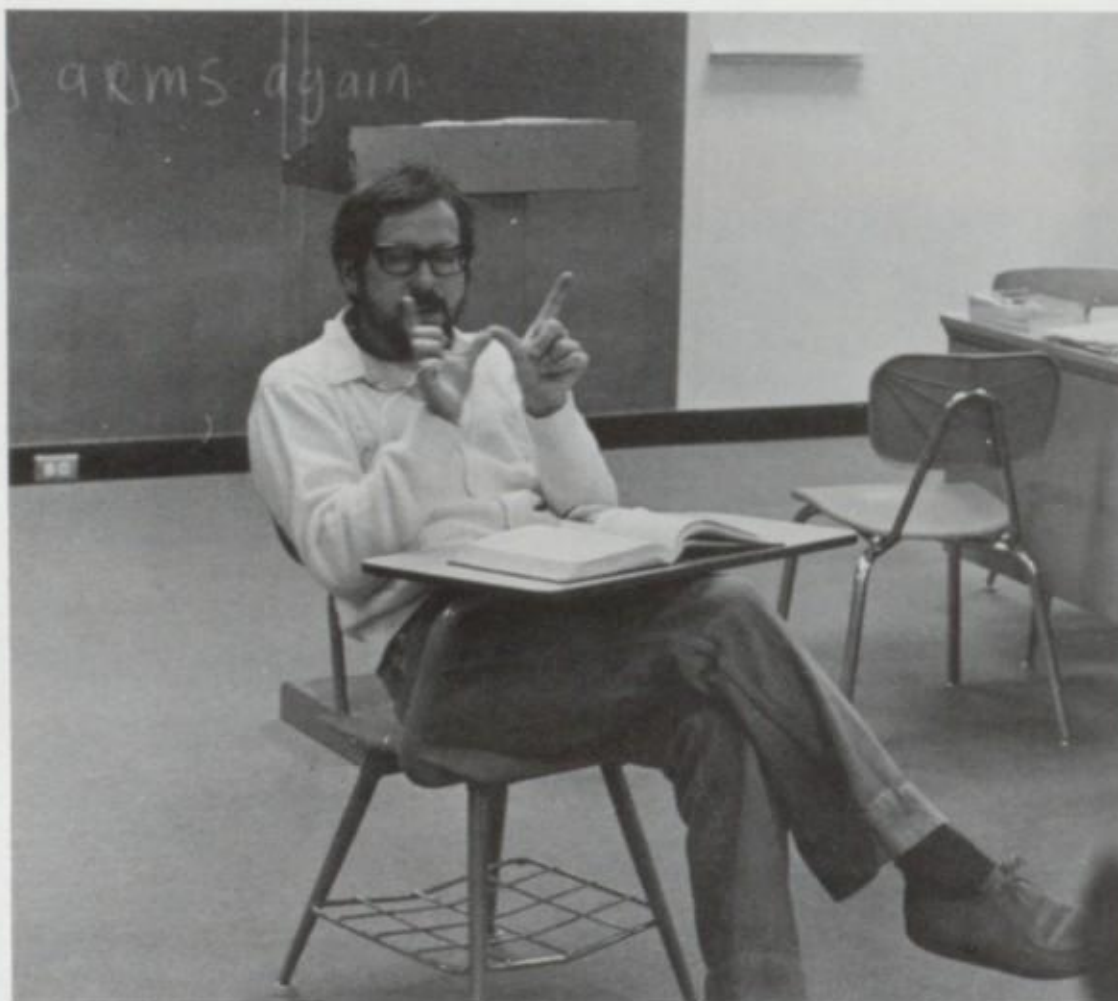

For interested students, there were quite a few math contests where students could compete. These activities involved the students with math outside the classroom, and were exciting for the participants.

Computer Math students take notes as Mr. John Davis discusses the program.

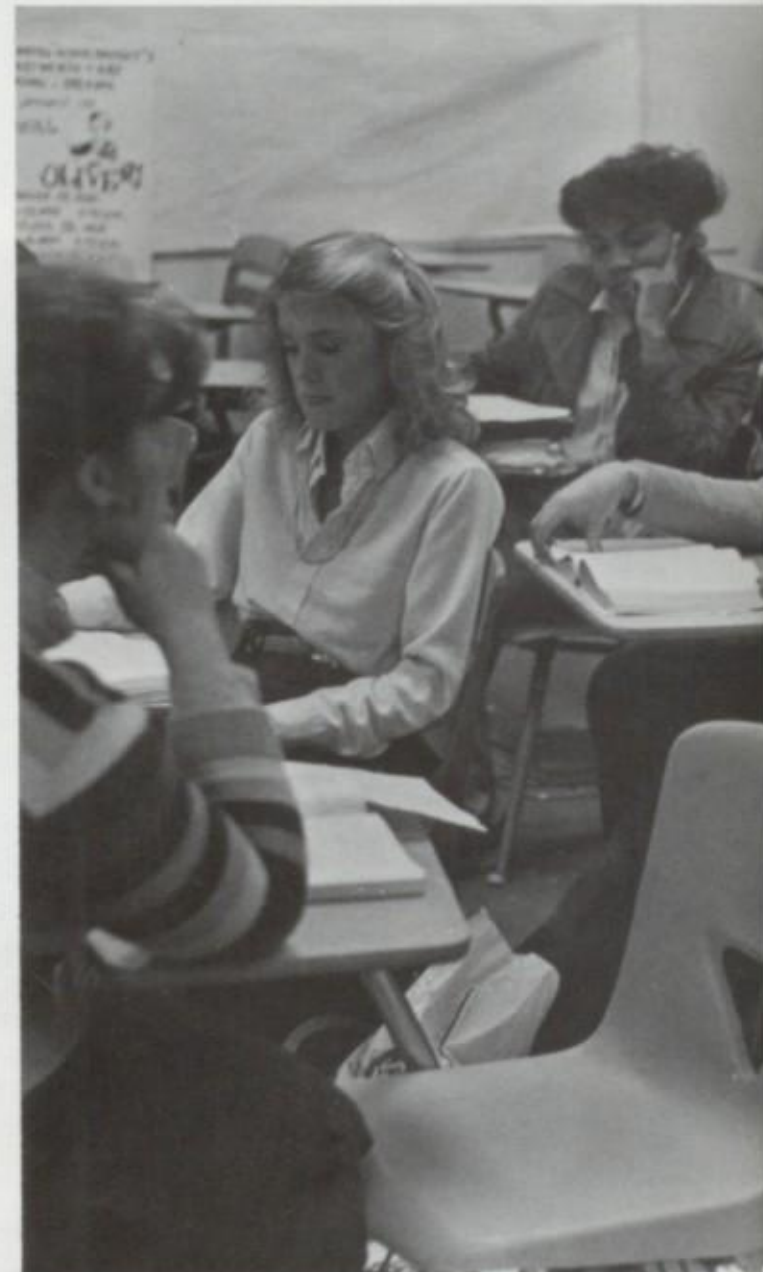

Using one of the many modern machines in Reading Lab, Rusty Wilkie works on improving his reading skills.

Looking through catalogues for new materials, Mrs. Gloria Mewshaw and Mrs. Virginia Jones discuss a workbook possibility for their English classes.

In a relaxed atmosphere, Mr. Bill Pell explains the short story to his students.

Mrs. Nancy Whittaker's third period Dramatic Literature class discusses the literature selection.

Instructing her class in the finer points of acting, Mrs. Nancy Whitaker discusses the play.

The A.P. English class listens as Neil Moglin discusses English Literature.

Interest In English Revives

At the beginning of the year, the English department enacted several new rules that applied to all English classes. These rules set forth requirements concerning tardies, bringing supplies to class, rough drafts, and research papers, among other things. Most teachers agreed that these rules helped eliminate waste of class time and gave them more time to cover vital material. In addition to these changes, two new courses were added: Dramatic Literature and Shakespearean Drama. Mrs. Anne Arbuckle, Mrs. Thorne Martin, and Ms. Jody Davis joined the English staff this year.

Greater interest was shown in some of the old courses. Reading Lab, which is designed to help students improve their reading skills, was very popular. Many students found the course helpful in increasing reading speed, comprehension, and enjoyment. Junior Review was also popular. This course is designed to help juniors prepare for the PSAT.

The English department also sponsored after-school sessions to help students prepare for the PSAT and the SAT. In six sessions, interested students practiced doing exercises on antonyms, analogies, sentence completion, and reading comprehension. These sessions helped give students confidence and may have raised their scores significantly.

The 2nd period Economics class listens as Mr. Horace Reese discusses the American monetary system.

While listening to Mr. George Fain's lecture, the A.P. European History class takes notes.

In a seminar type session, Mrs. Frances Racine's A.P. U.S. History class discusses Andrew Jackson.

Changes Add Interest

The Social Studies Department experienced many changes. Beginning with the 1981 class, students became subject to a new graduation requirement. While at one time economics and government were elective courses, they are now requirements for graduation.

New teachers who became members of the social studies department were Gary Bordogna and Dale Mulwee. A new course offered by the department was anthropology.

Social Studies students participated in many interesting events, including an interview with Senator Carroll Campbell and a visit by Rumanian students.

Many students find discussions of current events interesting and informative.

Taking a final look at her notes, Lisa Stortz prepares for an economics test.

Discovering The Physical World

The science department held interest on all levels. Throughout any given day half the student body participated in a science course. Although only one year of science is required, many opted for science as an elective. Students found labs and class demonstrations more interesting than study halls. Students expanded their knowledge with projects which they took to competition in the Junior Academy of Science. Spartanburg rated high on the list of prize-winners among area high schools.

The semester system allowed subjects such as geology and astronomy to expand. The students enjoyed a closer relationship with their teachers. Three science clubs, Delta Pi, Jets, and Astronomy allowed outside participation for members. The science department enjoyed much success and was a field with many future opportunities for students.

Before doing a chemistry experiment, Cathy Richie and Leigh Watson try to light the bunsen burner.

Discussing the assignment, the A.P. Biology class uses the last few minutes of class to begin the homework.

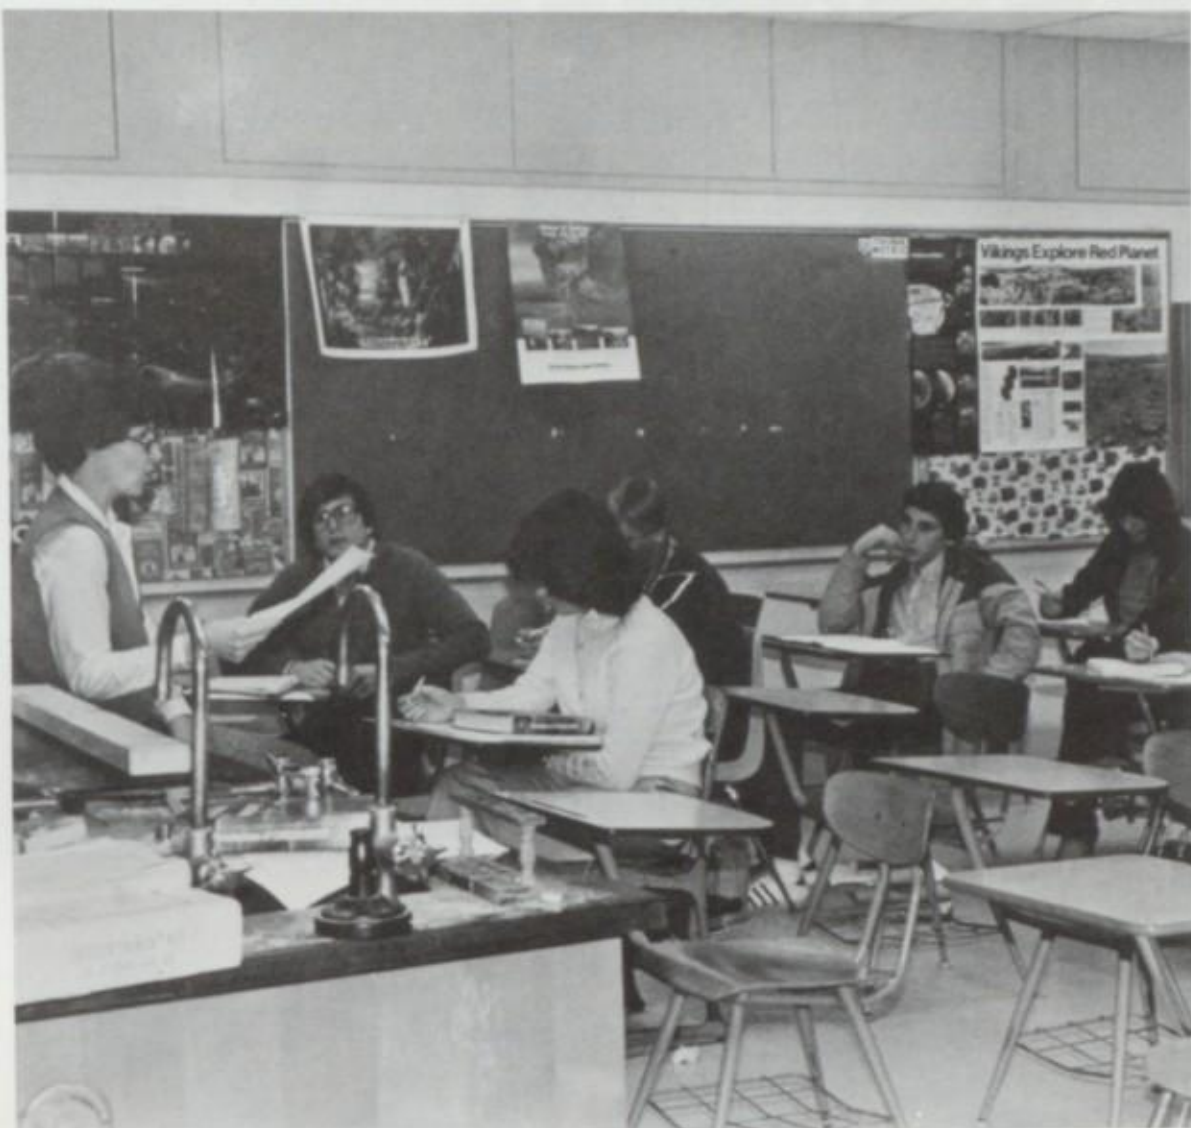

In the greenhouse, biology students check to see how their projects are doing.

Taking some final notes, Ron Eaglin prepares for a test.

Chemistry students take notes as Mrs. Nancy Bane explains the lesson.

Honors Physics students relax a few minutes before the bell rings.

A Cultural Experience

The Spartanburg High School Foreign Language Department offered many different language courses for its students. The department added German 3 to its list of languages. According to Mrs. Marcelina Goodlett, Spartanburg High School has an advantage over other schools. She says, "All of the teachers are natives or have had extensive training in their language." Because of this, the students get first-hand cultural training.

During class, students did several projects to display their language. They sang songs, played games and demonstrated specific foods of their language. Projects such as these made learning a foreign language fun.

Learning a foreign language has many advantages. Mrs. Goodlett states that, "By learning a foreign language, a person experiences the enjoyment of communication, the strengthening of their own English, and the reassurance for future jobs."

Spanish students take notes on Spanish culture.

Before turning his paper in, French student Steven Siegel checks for mistakes.

Preparing For The Business World

There was a wide interest in the business field at Spartan High, especially in typing, shorthand, and accounting. Besides just notes and study time, these classes had speakers and participated in other interesting activities. The data processing class drew up a flowchart; wrote, entered, and printed out their own program on the computer.

The business courses had several advantages. A business background aids in employability and for personal uses. For instance, the rates to hire someone to type a college paper are $7.50 a page. A business education was a good preparation for a college major in Business Administration or a job after graduation.

Creativity Encouraged

Both Art and Home Economics courses were very popular as elective courses. "Getting ready for life on your own" has been the main objective of Home Arts courses. The courses offered have been geared to prepare the student for domestic life. Single Living, a course designed to teach the students the skills necessary for living on their own, saw a tremendous rise in popularity. Married Life, a popular course from past years, was designed to prepare the student for life after the wedding.

Art became a big part of Spartan High life for many students. The highlight of the art classes was the casting class. The class consisted of making jewelry with silver and gold.

Students planning to take art classes must first take the basic art course to get them started. Development of artistic talents led eleven students to submit portfolios to the Scholastic Art Program. This program is the largest of its kind. Students also prepared portfolios for college.

Mr. MacArthur Goodwin was elected president of the South Carolina Art Association. This will enable Spartan High to host the Annual Convention in 1981.

The Art Department began to enhance the art appreciation course. This course taught the history of art and dealt with contemporary art trends. Juniors and seniors considered this a fun and exciting course. Mr. Goodwin felt that increased enrollment in such art classes was a "positive sign for the future of the art department". Spartan High is lucky to have many courses not offered by some colleges.

Gaining Practical Experience

Industrial Arts and Daniel Morgan Vocational School both offered courses that will help their students in finding good jobs and will prepare them for life. They both offered a variety of courses that appealed to many different people.

The Industrial Arts program at Spartanburg High is headed by Mr. Bob Sellars and Mr. Brady Cureton. Some of the courses offered are woodworking, hand, power, and machine tools, architectural drawing, blue print reading, and furniture construction and cabinet making. Architectural drawing was a popular course because people could identify with their own houses. The course was designed so that it would teach people what to look for in buying a house.

The Daniel Morgan program is headed by Mr. Jerry Steadman. This program offered such courses as machine shop, welding, business and office education, electricity, auto mechanics, masonry, carpentry, and metal fabrication. This program too, tried to meet the needs of the students to help them in the business world. Mr. Jerry Steadman was quoted as saying, "By 1985, all jobs will require some kind of skill. The students enrolled in this program will have an advantage. It's very good to have a skill to fall back on later in your life."

Keeping In Shape

A multitude of different courses were offered by the physical education department. These courses ranged from badminton to archery. A new course was also added which was Advanced Physical Education. This course was offered especially for those students who excel in physical education and it proved to be very beneficial for those who participated in it. Physical education was not considered as an elective, in fact, it was required for one semester in order to graduate. It is, however, considered as an elective after the requirements are met.

The head of the physical education department, Mrs. Blondell Ragin, had a tough job indeed. She was responsible for scheduling classes for teachers, and setting up a test file. Despite the hectic pace she had to keep up, Mrs. Ragin thoroughly enjoyed carrying out her various duties. "Our physical education is progressing and we hope to continue this trend in the future," commented Mrs. Ragin.

A Worth While Effort

The members of the SAGA staff have the responsibility of producing a yearbook that will record all the important events of the year. Staff members began during the summer selling ads to local merchants. Every day during sixth period, SAGA staff members wrote copy, draw layouts, edit, type, crop pictures, fit copy, write captions, and prepare to send the sections to the printer. Staff members also worked after school, on week nights, and Saturdays to meet deadlines. At the end of the year, the staff proudly distributed the finished product to the students.

The staff members and the advisor, Mrs. Anne Arbuckle, work very hard to produce a yearbook that will accurately record the events of the year. The SAGA has won several awards in the past, and each year some staff members attend conventions to learn how to make the yearbook even better.

Writing out photograph assignments for the faculty section, Teresa Martin and Cindy Powell get a head start on their work.

On Top Of The News

The SHS newspaper, the BLUE PRINT, was produced once a month by a group of hard working students under the direction of Mr. Alvin Quinn. The paper covered news, community news, sports, feature articles, editorials, movie reviews and cartoons. The BLUE PRINT staff, working before school, sixth period, after school, some nights and some Saturdays, worked very hard to meet deadlines and cover all the important news. The members of the staff worked hard selling ads, writing, editing, making layouts, typing, and taking photographs. In spite of the hard work BLUE PRINT staff members agreed that the experience was interesting and a lot of fun.

After the subscription drive, Lindsey Kelly and Duncan Alford count subscriptions.

New Heights In Performance

Spartanburg High School's two orchestras, the Chamber and Symphony Orchestras, gave excellent performances throughout the year. The Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Bill Russell Scott, provided musical entertainment at the Christmas assembly, the Student Council Installation, and the Celebration of the Battle of Cowpens as well as for Governor Richard Riley when he visited Spartanburg High in September. Members of the Symphony Orchestra practiced before school from 7:45 to 8:40 each morning.

The Chamber Orchestra is our second high school orchestra. It was started in 1979 with only 19 string players. Now, in its second year of existence, it has grown to 34 strong players. Under the direction of Mr. Michael Allen, it has added winds to qualify it for a full 50 piece symphony orchestra. The Chamber Orchestra performed at the banquet, and also for Rumanian students who visited the country during first semester. In order to raise money for future trips, the orchestra sold fruit and candy. Spartanburg High is one of the few high schools in the country which has two symphony orchestras.

Marching To Success

The Marching Band planned their European Concert tour where they will perform in the 35th anniversary celebrations in Sneek, The Netherlands. They were the only American band invited. To raise money for their trip, the Band sold fruit and Christmas ornaments.

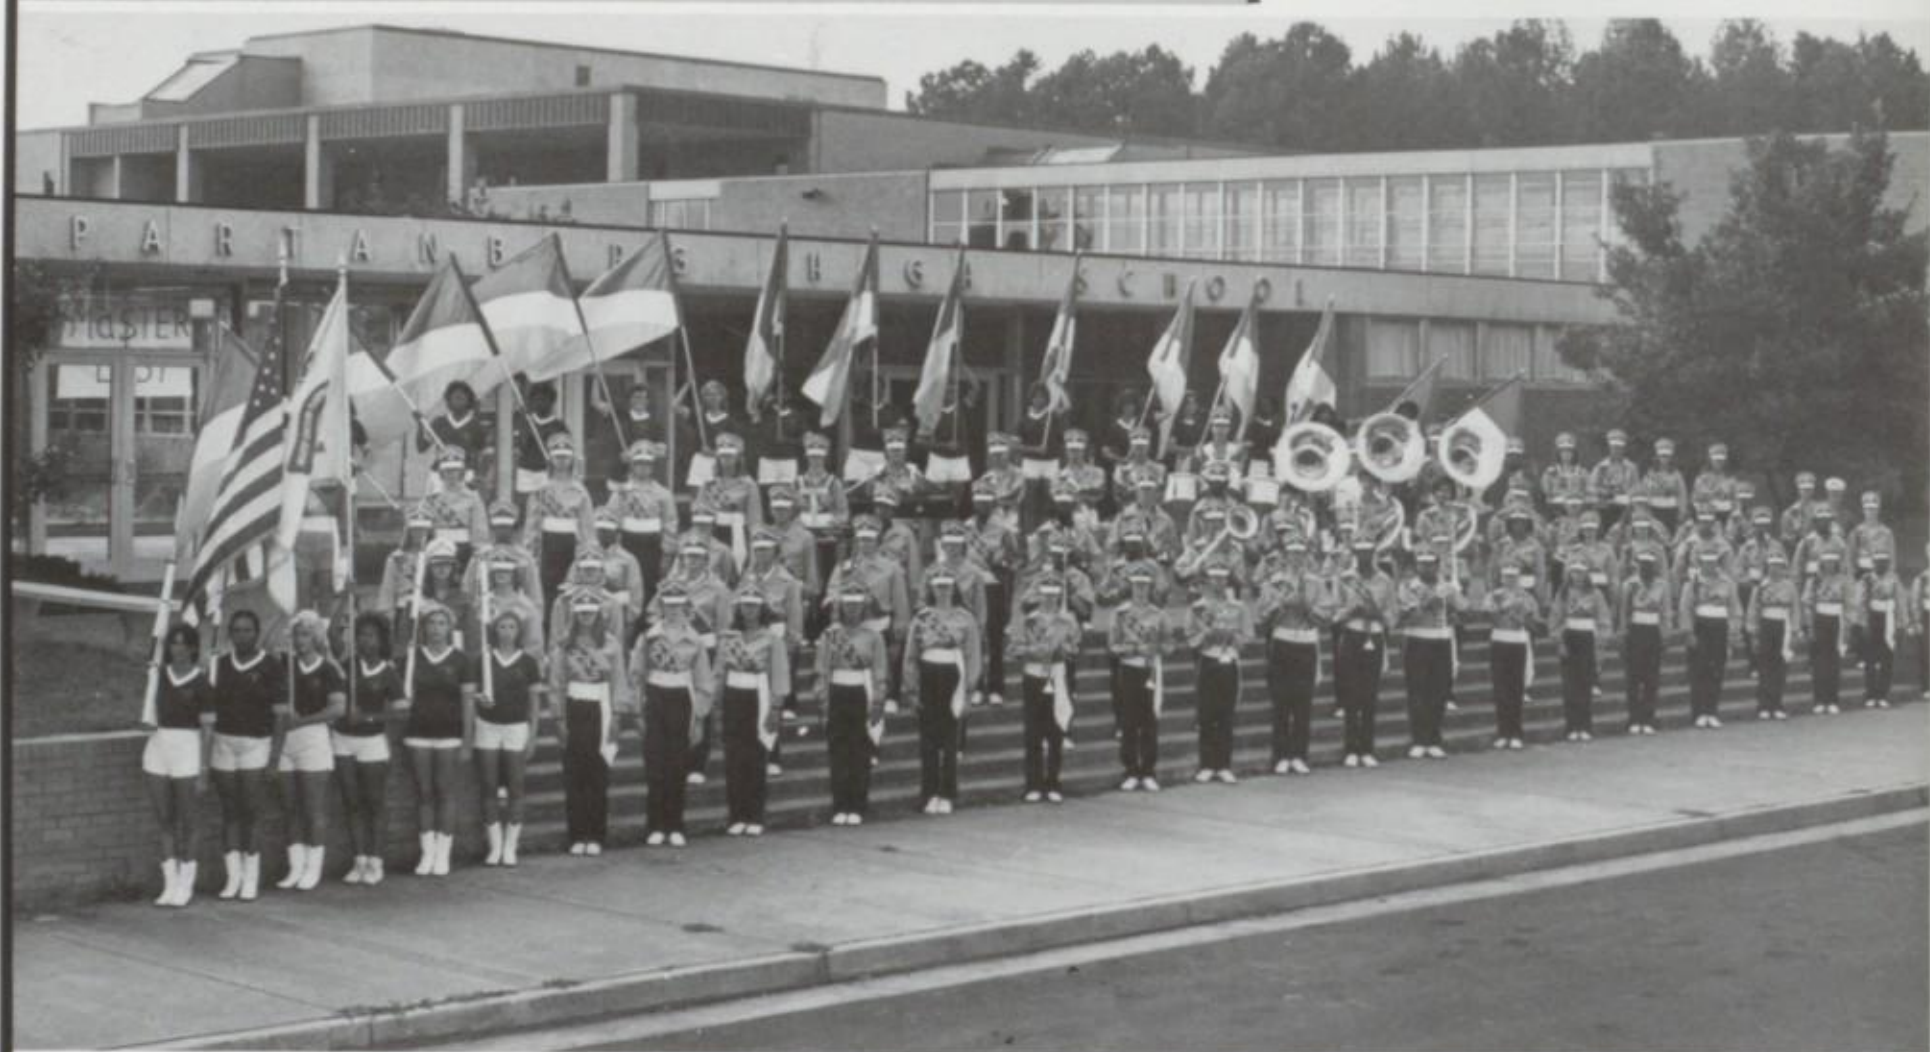

Some of the activities that the Band participated in throughout the year were the South Carolina All-State Band audition, the Spring Concert Festival, the parade for the two-hundredth anniversary for the Battle of Cowpens, the Marching Festival and many more.

Our Band has received seven consecutive Outstanding Performance Awards for the S.C. Band Directors Association. They were also one of the four high school bands to be a Guest Performing Band at the 1981 Anglo-International Music Festival in Atlanta.

The Band has done extremely well this year. Along with weekly practices, performances, trips, etc., the Band still finds time to play at pep rallies, football games, and school assemblies.

A Big Year For Chorus

This year Ms. Christi Wells tried something entirely new: all those students wishing to join chorus had to audition. Through this procedure, five classes resulted: two advanced classes, two regular classes, and an ensemble. The ensemble has many extra concerts besides the ones scheduled for the entire chorus, and sings for luncheons and other events.

The Chorus performed many times this year. Their first concert was on November 10. They were invited to play with Spartanburg Symphony for the Pops Concert. The Christmas Concert held on December 14 was a big event. Four area high schools, Dorman, Broome, Boiling Springs, and Spartanburg High participated. The Chorus also had a TV special on WSPA. The program was broadcast twice during the holiday season. On January 17 the chorus performed at the Battle of Cowpens. Being able to participate in this event was quite an honor since Strom Thurmond and Fritz Hollings were also there. The last concert of the year, the Spring Concert, was April 30. The chorus must start practicing two nights a week for six weeks prior to a scheduled concert. But chorus is not all work and no play, as the seniors have found out. They went to New York the first weekend in May for the special senior trip.

During the first assembly of the year, chorus members sing at the Student Council installation.

Concentrating on getting their moves right, the chorus practices late into the afternoon.

Sports were once again successful at SHS. The football team was under the new leadership of Coach Ellis Johnson, who replaced Bill Carr, and made it to the state playoffs before being defeated. The girls' tennis team, although they did not win the state championship again, finished high in the state tournament and have great hopes for next year. The cross country team highlighted the sports scene at Spartan High by winning all but two meets en route to winning the State Championship title. The Girls' basketball team, as well as all the other teams, assisted in upholding the image of Spartan High in the area of sports.

Seniors Strengthen Young Team

The Spartanburg High Varsity football team turned in a respectable 7-4 record, and earned a spot in the state playoffs this season. When asked about his team's performance, Coach Ellis Johnson said, "It could have been better, but it could have been worse."

The Vikings lost almost the whole coaching staff from last year. "With a new head coach and two new defensive coaches, it's rough on the players. They have to adjust and the seniors have to gain leadership," commented Coach Johnson. The Vikes had a large percentage of starters lost to graduation last year. A small group of seniors had to take over the leadership of the team.

The team set their goals high for the season. They set a goal to reach the regions, which they did; to go undefeated, which they did not accomplish; and to reach the playoffs, which they did. They were happy with the goals they were able to achieve, even though some went unrealized.

Bill Bradshaw had a good year at quarterback again, especially toward the end of the season. But this was a young team, and it took teamwork to bring it all together. The seniors on the team had an overall good year. The team had to throw a lot, but with good receivers and a fine quarterback, they were able to click off yardage.

On the offensive line there was only one returning starter, but this was the most consistent part of the whole team. David Carter was the one most consistent player throughout the year, just as he was last year. The linebacking core was small, but they had a good season also. They, as a group, had the most tackles on the team. They were an extremely hard hitting group.

Successful Season For New Coaches

The Vikings opened the season against a tough Broome team at Snyder Field. The Vikings were an inexperienced team, with new players and coaches. The Centurions ended the season showing just how strong they were, but at this game they took a 17-14 victory over the Vikings. This was the first time that Broome had ever beaten Spartan High.

Spartanburg rebounded from their opening week defeat to trouble T.L. Hanna 31-14. The Vikes were able to do this by surmounting an excellent rushing attack. Spartan High accumulated 313 yards of rushing offense. Also their defense came back to play an excellent second half, practically shutting down the T.L. Hanna offense, to overcome the mistakes the team made and insure a win.

The next week the Vikes upped their record to 2-1 as they defeated arch rival Dorman 9-0. The Vikings were able to capitalize on three Dorman fumbles, while overcoming five of its own to take a rain-soaked victory from the Cavaliers. Bill Bradshaw scored the only touchdown of the game and the defense added a safety to collect all of Spartan High's points.

The Vikes next opponent was Northwestern from whom they took a 9-0 victory. In this game Jerry Taylor quarterbacked for the injured Bradshaw. The Vikes moved the ball up and down the field, but they could not get it into the end zone. The Vikes relied on Bradshaw's foot to give them nine points on field goals.

The next week they took a hard-earned 13-7 Homecoming win over the stubborn Rock Hill team. Coach Ellis Johnson jumped on the Homecoming festivities saying that the players were not mentally ready for the game. The Vikings were down 7-6 with six minutes left in the game. The Vikes rode the passing arm of Bradshaw down the field to set up their touchdown. Bradshaw ran the final points in himself for a keeper.

The next week Easley handed the Vikings a 12-7 defeat. Easley used a hard hitting defense and an offense that wore the Vikings defense down. Spartanburg had two chances to put the game away, but they could not do it. The Vikes were not ready for the Easley attack.

With plenty of time to set up, Bill Bradshaw (12) attempts to complete a pass for extra yardage.

Securely holding the ball, Glen Brown (2) attempts to out maneuver the defender.

Vikings Achieve Preseason Goals

The Vikings came back the following week to shut out Lancaster 20-0. The Vikings rode the passing arm of Bradshaw once again to steal the possession of first place in Regional-4A action. The Vikes put out great team effort for the first time in two games. They came out from the start and took control of the game and Lancaster never came back.

Bill Bradshaw opened up his passing attack to lead the Vikings to a 31-7 victory over Union. Bradshaw passed for 148 yards including three for touchdowns. The defense played well also, allowing only one touchdown the entire game.

The next week the Vikings played Boiling Springs and barely edged out a 17-6 victory. The Vikes had to use a come from behind offense to defeat the Bulldogs in the second half. Coach Johnson attributed the play of his team in the first half to "looking ahead to Gaffney."

When the Vikings played Gaffney, it was a battle of high powered offenses and the defense was left to decide the outcome. The Indians' defense turned two Spartanburg fumbles into touchdowns. Gaffney took the game over in the first five minutes, but the Vikes did not give up. In the end, Gaffney took a 38-28 victory for the Region 11-4A championship.

The Vikings still made it to the state playoffs, but they were forced to play a tough Aiken team which handed them a 31-16 defeat. The game was not as bad as the score indicated, but the air went out of the Viking attack when Bill Bradshaw went down with an ankle injury.

Even though they did not make it to the second round, appearing in the play-offs proved to be a great accomplishment for the Vikes. With all their inexperience, they were not expected to go this far. The team, as a whole, turned in a fantastic effort.

The players had a difficult task in adjusting to the staff change. Spartan

High has not had a coaching staff change in thirteen years, so the seniors really deserve credit for keeping the team together. There was a small group of seniors, but they took charge well. Not everything was changed and corrected this year, but next year will provide more opportunities for improvement.

Coach Johnson commented that the coaching change was difficult for him as well as for his players. He said that being head coach, he was separated from his players, as opposed to working with the players as an assistant coach.

Next season looks bright for the Vikings. They have a lot of returning players and the addition of the excellent players from J.V. team. For the first time in years, all of the feeder Junior High School teams had winning seasons. This means the immediate future should improve and the 3-4 year range looks excellent.

Competition Improves Skills

The Varsity Cheerleaders, under the supervision of Ms. Kathy Newman, did a fine job of leading the crowd in spirit for the Vikings. They put in a lot of hard work to prepare for the season. They went to the Columbia National Cheerleading Camp at U.S.C., and they practiced everyday from 3:30 to 5:30 and sometimes on weekends. They also spent hours planning pep rallies and choreographing dances.

For the first time this year, SHS competed in cheerleading camps. They went to the National Atlantic Coast Cheerleading Championships. Out of seventy-five squads, they placed in the top fifteen.

The Cheerleaders today use poise, skill, and over-exaggerated movements. They use more gymnastics and stunts than they have had in the past. The cheerleaders also plan to attend more regional meets to gain experience, and their goal is to eventually gain recognition as a championship squad. They would like to do more for the fall sports like cross country.

J.V.'s Field Best Team Ever

While well-deserved credit goes to the varsity football squad each year, the future players of the varsity worked just as hard. Each day after school, they practiced in hot or cold weather. The J.V. team this year was considered by some to be the best team ever. They practiced with a good attitude and played with great skill and determination. When asked about the players, Coach Nesbitt replied, "Many players showed a greater ability than we expected. No one was outstanding; it was just a total team effort." Coach Nesbitt also remarked that the Varsity outlook was bright, and with the offensive ability this young team showed, things should go well. "We had a good offensive line which enabled our tailback to run $\frac{3}{4}$ of our touchdowns." The team had a 9-1 record, losing in the last 22 seconds to Lancaster. The only comment on this loss by Coach Nesbitt was, "It's too bad they lost; they really tried hard to be an undefeated team." When asked for an overall statement, Nesbitt said, "They worked hard, played hard, and tried to be the first undefeated J.V. team in S.H.S.'s history."

Out maneuvering the defense, Donnell Ellis (33), gains extra yardage for the Vikings.

Slow Start Effects Season

The 1980 Lady Vikings Volleyball team pulled through with a seven and eight season. The Lady Vikes had a slow start, losing their first matches to Dorman and Boiling Springs. The teams in the past had played their best ball in the second half of the season, but this season the number of games was cut in half.

The region teams played once, either home or away; so the Lady Vikes had to prove themselves in the tournament. Although their record didn't indicate how well they played, they defeated Northwestern and Rock Hill in consolation and lost only to top-seated Boiling Springs.

"I feel they improved tremendously towards the end. I was very sorry the schedule was cut in half considering our best ball is played in the second half of the season," stated Coach Blondell Ragin. "We are looking forward to a better season next year, because we will have six returning players."

While huddling to boost spirit and morale, Coach Blondell Ragin gives helpful instructions.

Inexperienced Team Wins Region

The girls' tennis team delivered a fine season in spite of their lack of experience. Because they were less experienced than teams in previous years, much hard work and determination was required. "I was very pleased with the outcome of the season. This year was mainly a time for regrouping," commented Coach Susan Dean. Losing five seniors, of which four were starters, took great depth from the team. The girls worked hard and won the region title. They advanced to the state and came in second. Although the team was young, Coach Dean commended them for a job well done. They proved the key factor of their success was their determination. Sophomore Beth Marshall's hard work guided her from number seven position to number two. "With willingness to play like this, I expect the team to be stronger next season. We have the State Championship as our goal, and we will achieve it with a little more teamwork, experience, and depth," remarked Coach Dean.

Vikings Win State Championship

Preparing for the cross country season was long and strenuous work. The team members ran about 500 miles in the summer to prepare for the season ahead. They started in June as a team, and they ran 4 to 10 miles a day from Monday through Friday. Some ran all year round, and it paid off as the team went 114-1-1, placing two members on the all-state team with one honorable mention. The Vikes also captured the State Championship by defeating Irmo.

When asked the team's strategy, Coach Jim Kilbreth replied, "We ran as a group and not as a crowd." Their strategy also paid off in the state meet. They followed it to a tee, and the end result was victory. "In the state meet we tried to place all runners ahead of Irmo's fourth man," said Coach Kilbreth.

When asked about next year, Coach Kilbreth replied, "Hey . . . What can we say? We've got seven runners returning and we're going to try for two consecutive state championships."

Stretching tight muscles, members of the track team loosen up before a meet as Coach Jim Kilbreth looks on.

Team Suffers From Inexperience

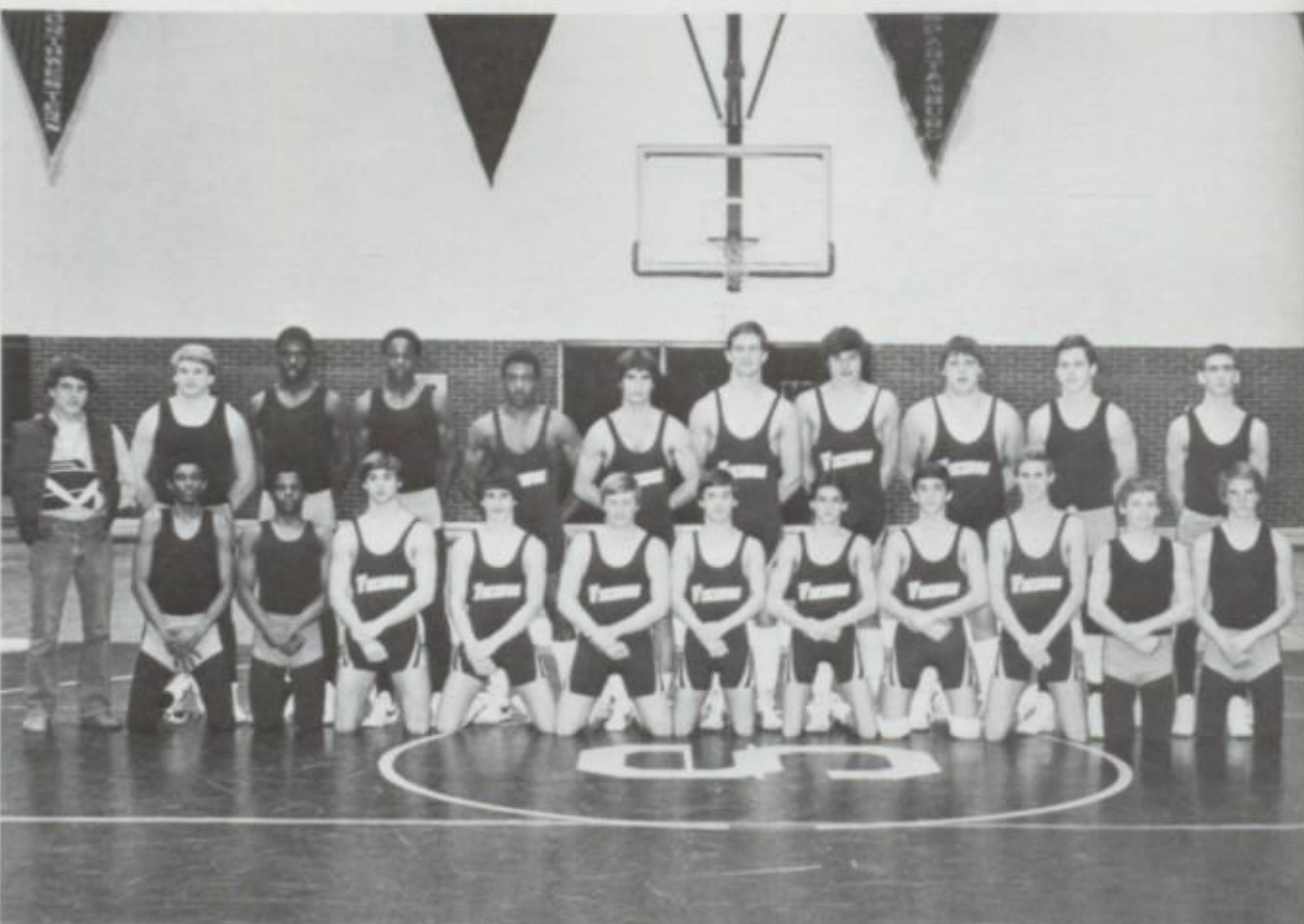

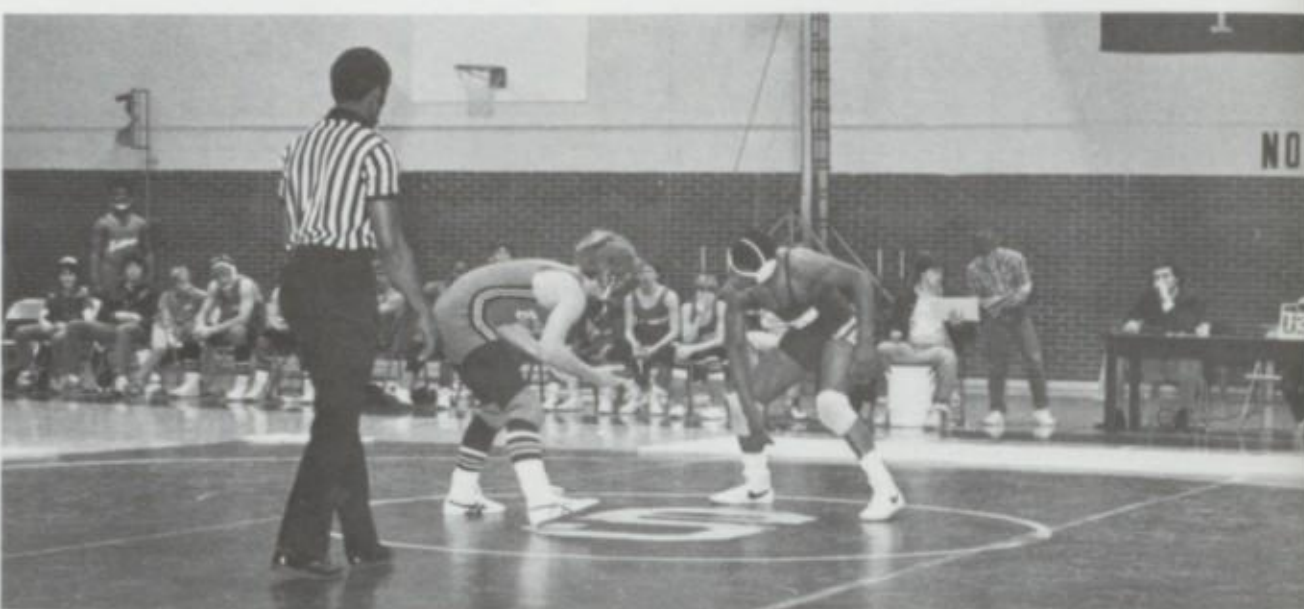

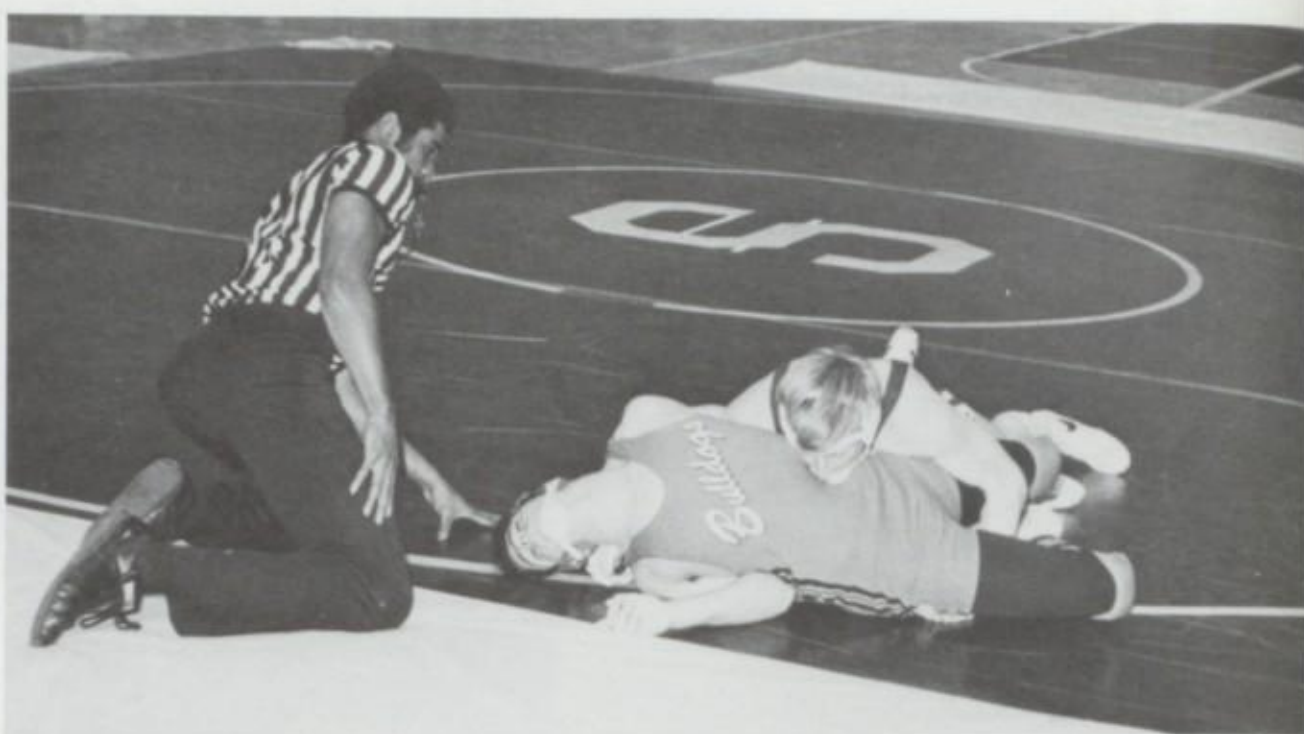

An inexperienced wrestling team led by a few returnees from last year's team underwent a rather difficult season. Placed against some very stubborn opponents, the team ended the season with a record of 6-8. David Carter and Terry Orner were two of the strongest wrestler. Hopefully a junior high program will be started in an attempt to rebuild the program. "I feel like we had a lot of guys that really put a lot of effort out this year. One of the biggest things that we were lacking is strength. It's hard to wrestle someone who is a lot stronger and expect to win. I feel we know as much and work as hard as other teams and with time and experience we'll be able to compete with better schools," stated Coach Wayne Anthony. Rock Hill, Northwestern, and Byrnes were their toughest opponents. These three schools are the ones which have strong junior high programs. "We only had four seniors this year, two of which started most of the matches. With a lot of hard work, time, and effort we can have a real good team next year. I'd like to thank the people who supported us. It takes a special kind of person to be a wrestler. These guys worked hard enough that they deserved more support than they got," commented Coach Wayne Anthony.

Winning Tradition Established

The 1981 Soccer team experienced its best year ever. They carried a record of 4-0 in the region and an overall record of 11-2. The new coach of the Soccer team, Mr. Gary Bordogna played a key role in the success of the soccer team. The goal for the team was to establish a winning tradition and program which they managed to fulfill. Some of the success of the team could be attributed to the outstanding players of the team who were Robin Williams, Jurgen Ziegler, Mike Bell, Rick Lee, and Phillip Barn, but it was a team effort. The team managed to make its way to the state playoffs. It required having the best record in the region which they did. "Expectations of the playoffs was a learning experience for us. We had a very successful regular season and the playoff experience we gained this year will help build the Vikings into a state power in future years," comment Coach Bordogna.

Vikings Overcome Early Slump

The Varsity Basketball team overcame an early season slump to take first place in their region with just two region games left to play. The Vikes used the help of some players who joined the team after the first semester to stage their turnaround.

The Varsity squad lost a lot of close games early, but mistakes cost them the victory. They started off the year with a young club; but after some players joined the team second semester, they produced a 10-1 record including nine straight victories.

During the Viking's winning streak, they played a lot of zone, and used the fast break whenever it was available. They scored a lot of baskets off their fast break. The Vikes also liked to press after they scored. Coach Doug Lowe said his team liked to play a fast tempo game, forcing the action. They were a small team, so they played the full 94 feet of the court.

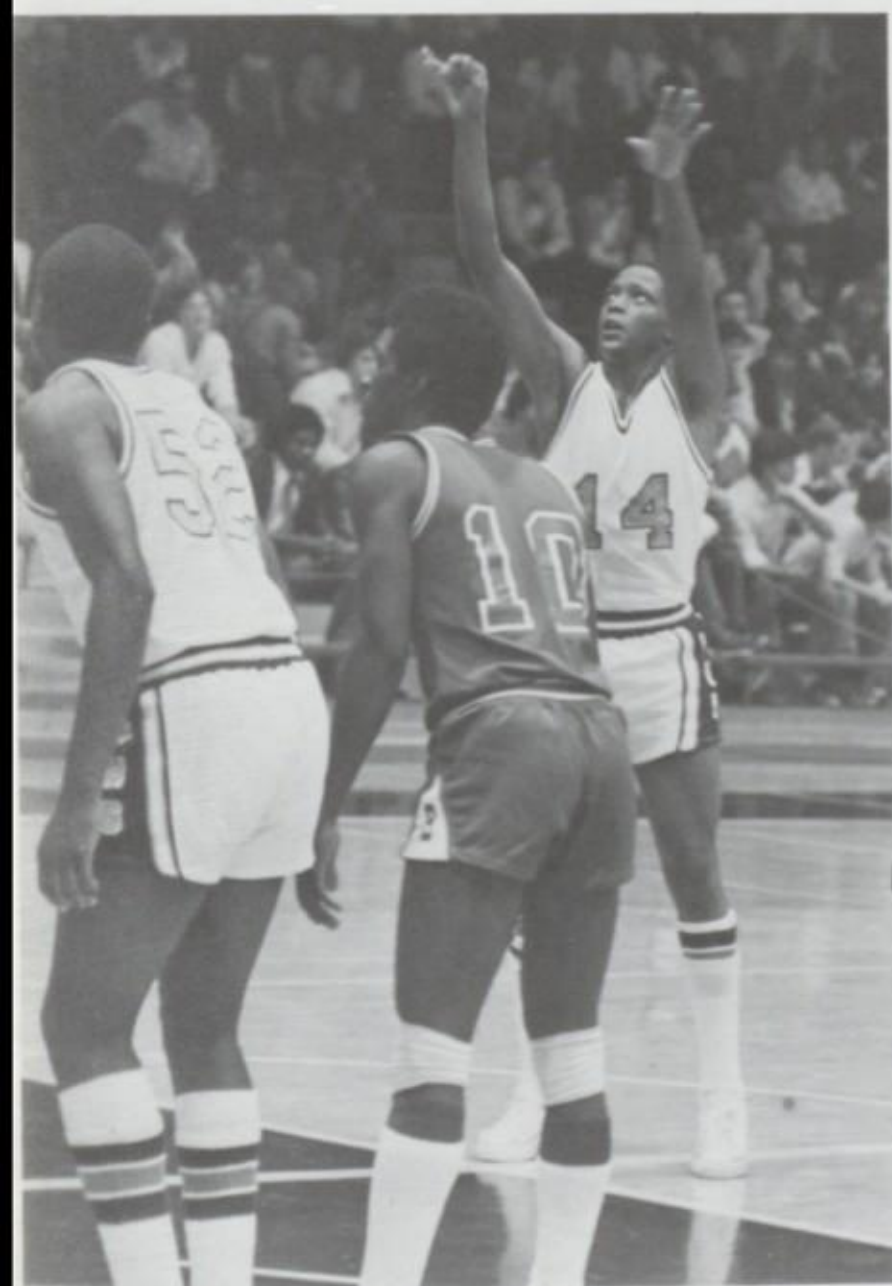

Shooting over his man, Lee Sartor (14) attempts to score for the Vikes.

Second Semester Improvement

George Adams played a big part in the turnaround. He joined the team late and earned a starting role. He took the pressure off of some of the other players as far as rebounding and scoring were concerned. Lee Sartor was very consistent throughout the year at point guard. He ran the offense, called the defense, and ran 90% of the fast breaks. Eric Means was the best rebounder for the team. Bobby Wilson did an excellent job of shooting the ball, and became a good outside shooter. Arthur Haney played strong at the wing position, even playing brilliantly at times. Marion Madison started earlier in the year, and did real well coming off the bench.

Coach Lowe stated, "The attitude of this team has been super. When we started off bad, everyone worked hard at practice. We got the rest of our team second semester, and we got everything going. This team just refused to quit."

Driving past his man Lee Sartor (14) moves the ball upcourt for the Vikings.

Good concentration allows Arthur Haney (42) to make this shot as he is fouled, on the play.

Successful Season For Lady Vikes

The Lady Vikings had by far their best season ever. They should finish first in Region II 4A, ahead of some very strong competition. This region is probably the toughest in the state.

The team finished second in the Christmas tournament. They also played against Byrnes in Clemson, winning the game 69-55. They shot an amazing 66% from the floor, and 88% from the foul line. Coach Jane Albright stated that they played like a college team in that game. Byrnes was the number one ranked team in the Peach Blossom Conference.

The Lady Vikings started off strong this season, but had a few off games. They were ranked in the top ten in the state for the first time this year. At one time they were ranked number one in their region.

The nucleus of the team were Loraine Foster, Gwen Miller, and Sara Anne Timms. This was the first group to go through Coach Albright's program at Spartan High. They were also Tri-Captains.

Loraine Foster became Spartanburg High's all time leading scorer. She scored her 1000th career point $\frac{3}{4}$ of the way through this season. She was probably the best player in the state. She had great quickness, and played very unselfishly. Her passes were very impressive, and would often bring the crowd to life.

Gwen Miller was a very strong inside player. She was Spartan High's career leading rebounder. She played a key role on defense, and she was very important in breaking presses.

Sara Anne Timms was the purist shooter on the team. She was a team leader. She played good, scrappy defense, and played an important role on the team.

Loraine Foster (20) scores two points, as Sara Anne Timms (44), Janet Jones (24), and Gwen Miller (22) look on.

Showing excellent form, Gwen Miller (22) tries for another point for the Vikings.

The Vikes had more than just three good players, though. Conner Horne was a good play-making guard. Janet Jones came on strong in the middle of the season as a key rebounder and a good defensive player. Leslie Young was a spark plug off the bench who turned some games around. Annette Ellis was the quickest player on the team. She was a strong leaper and she helped to win some games. Coach Albright expects much from her in the future.

The Lady Vikes played a fast breaking style of play, favoring a man for man defense. They also pressed often. They used their good defense and presses to win many ball games. The team was an unusually smart one, too. They could pick up things and make offensive or defensive changes quickly.

Coach Jane Albright said, "This was a very enjoyable year for me as a coach. Everybody got along, and I couldn't have had a better group of people. Our goal is to win the State Championship, but it has been a very successful year, no matter what."

Strong Bench Helps Team

Jumping high into the air, Loraine Foster and Sara Anne Timms battle for a loose ball.

Cheerleaders Add New Dimension

The Varsity Basketball cheerleading squad set a new precedent by adding male members to the traditionally all-female squad. This change was an unexpected, but pleasant one for the student body. The squad cheered at all the home games and also the away games. They entertained the student body at pep rallies with numerous routines, and also stimulated class competition between the Seniors, Juniors, and Sophomores. Long and hard hours of daily practice enabled the cheerleaders to present spectacular performances at games and pep rallies as well. Under the supervision of a new sponsor, Ms. Kathy Newman, the Varsity Basketball cheerleaders earned a favorable reputation and achieved accuracy and skillfulness through hard work.

As a result of hard practice, the Varsity Basketball cheerleaders achieve perfection.

Cheering with all their might to give spirit to the crowd, Beth Turner and Jeff Murff spread enthusiasm.

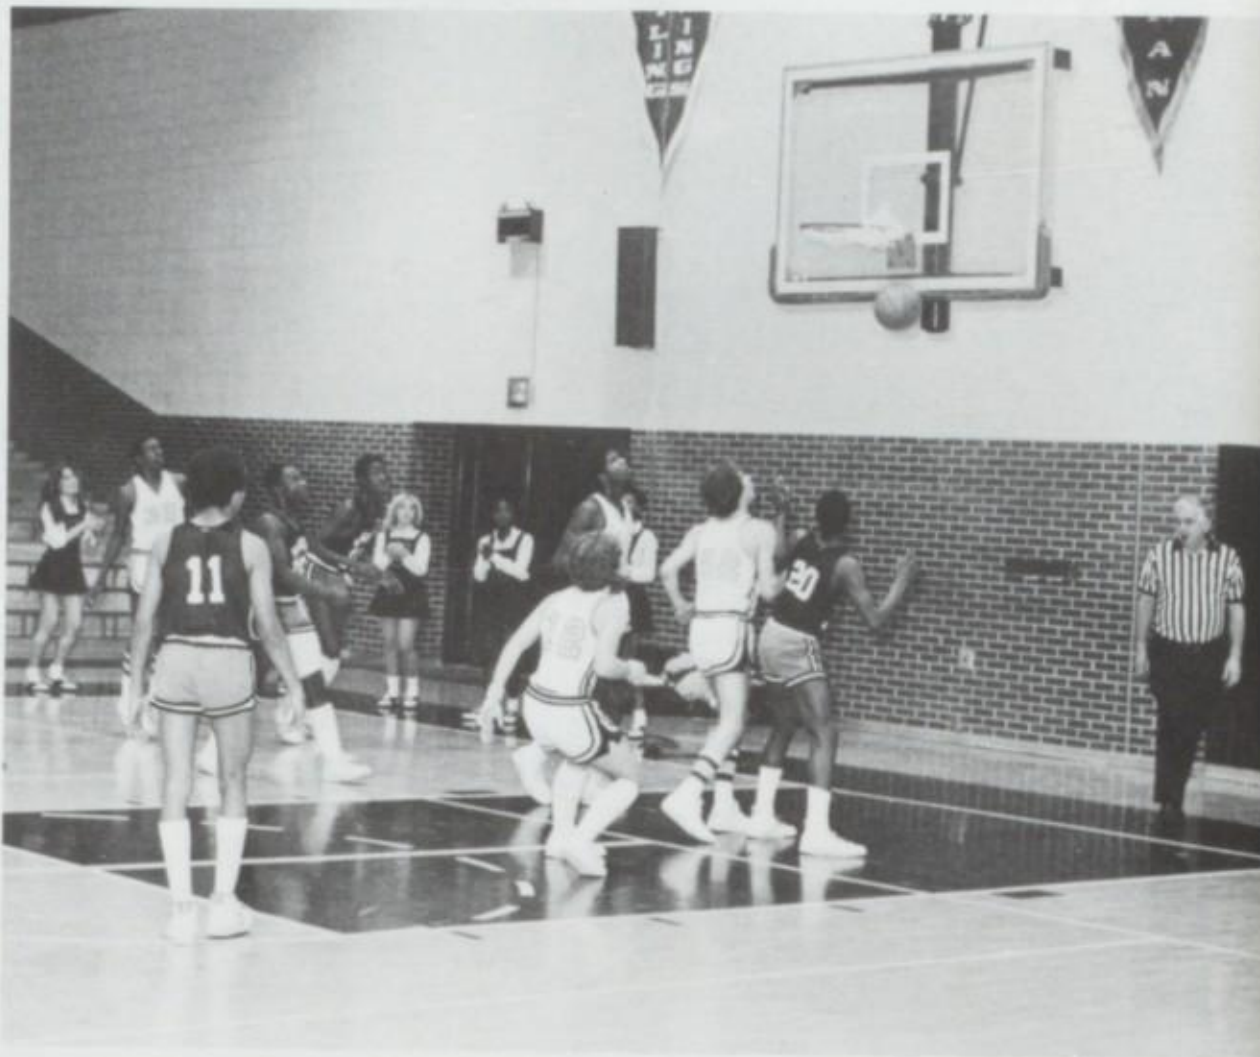

Experience Keys Viking Victories

The Junior Varsity Basketball team used an experienced squad to post a 15-3 record with two games remaining. Their team depended upon who was brought up to the Varsity team, but they posted a better record than they thought they would. Most of the players played in either junior high programs or church league teams.

The J.V.'s used good guard play to help them win. The big men had to learn how to score inside, but the defense was the key to their winning season. They worked hard on defense, and it paid off. They used a pressing man for man defense and a 2-1-2 zone to create problems for their opponents.

Coach Steve Linder said that things looked good for SHS in the future. They should be able to field strong players next year because the junior high players coming up are good. Coach Linder stated, "In J.V. Basketball, we try to build individual skills and at the same time have a winning team. I feel that we've had a lot of success in both areas this season."

The Junior Varsity Cheerleaders had an excellent year arousing spirit at the J.V. Football, J.V. Basketball, and Girls' Basketball games.

There were ten cheerleaders, all sophomores, who were chosen in September after a week of training and try-outs. During that week, the cheerleader candidates from all three junior highs learned cheers and made up cheers. The Varsity Cheerleaders and a faculty committee judged the girls on ability, enthusiasm, and determination. Being chosen cheerleader was just the first step. Many hours of practice and hard work followed. Routines were developed for the pep rallies and games.

"They were a good group-cooperative and I thought they did a good job," said Blondell Ragin their advisor. Hard work and dedication made these girls a group of which Spartan High was proud.

Doing their routine, Kendra Lyles, Sheila Davis, and Christi Harley use their pom-poms to aid in their cheering.

Tournaments End Successful Seasons

Both the Boys' and Girls' Varsity Basketball teams made it to the state playoffs. The girls' team was expected to be there, but the boys' team had to put on a great late season surge to win the region crown. The girls won 20 games, the first time for a Spartan High basketball team since 1974; and Lorraine Foster and Gwen Miller were voted to the all-region team.

The boys' team started off the tournament by beating Boiling Springs. They then lost to Lancaster by one point, but bounced back to take a ten point victory over Easley to advance to the upper state championship game. They lost this game to top seeded and undefeated Orangeburg-Wilkinson to finish out a fine season.

The girls' team had a fine season that ended in a disappointing three point loss to Aiken in the first round of the state playoffs. But this was after they ran off three wins over good teams. They beat Union in the first round, and then slipped by Gaffney 49-48. They then beat Rock Hill. The team had an excellent season of which they were very proud.

Shooting over the outstretched hands of her opponents, Gwen Miller (23) scores two against Gaffney.

Leaping high into the air, George Adams (30) clears the boards.

The girls' track team went through a rebuilding year with over half the team coming from the junior high schools and only three returning seniors. In some areas, however, the team had more depth than in past seasons. For the first time in three years, Spartan High had more than one distance runner. Returnees Camille Smart and Leigh Wood brought experience in the 440 while Stephanie Smart and Janice Jones returned to lead the sprinters. Pam Scurry was back in the shot and discuss events; Charlton Dawkins again led in the jumps. Lucia Davis was running distance for the first time, and Coach Linda Truluck expected her to be a strong contender.

T. L. Hanna, Wade Hampton, and Northwestern figured to be strong teams and to provide the roughest competition for SHS. For the first time, the girls' team went to the Carolina Relays to compete with 35-40 other teams.

Predicted Coach Truluck early in the season, "We have a young team—mostly seventh, eighth, and ninth graders—so we are in the building process. With all the hard work the team is putting out, we will hopefully have a successful season."

Distance Runners Provide Strength

The boys' track team at Spartan High was a young team. They were inexperienced in many events, but the players progress throughout the season would determine how well the Vikes would do. The Vikings did have some returning seniors who should be competitive. Because the Cross Country team won the state title, the team was strong in the distance events. The jumping and weight events appeared to strong also.

The toughest competition the Vikes expected was from Northwestern and Rock Hill in Region II. The Vikes planned to go to several invitational meets in the spring to prepare for the state competition. They ran in meets in Tennessee, Columbia, Charlotte, Rock Hill, and at Broome.

Coach Jim Kilbreth stated, "Our season will depend on how the younger runners progress throughout the year. We should be competitive, and we could place seven or eight people in the state meet."

The season for the first year Coach Julian Davis and his team was bright. The fact that only two strong players were seniors indicated a positive future for the boy's tennis.

Expectations Of A Good Season

Although the 1981 golf team got off to a slow start, first year coach John Craig was expecting improvements by the end of the season. The team consisted of many young players who lacked tournament experience and for that reason Coach Craig felt that the team should improve during the season. However, he was expecting strong performances from all the returning players.

Coach Craig explained that the team lost many seniors last year and as a result he considered this to be a rebuilding year. He still felt that although the team started off slowly in the Furman Invitational, they would be a strong contender for the region title. He predicted that Lancaster would be the hardest competitor in the region and would have a home course advantage since the region tournament would be played there.

Coach Craig also seemed to think that "Spartan High's future looks very bright because of the very fine talent that we have in our program." Craig definitely wants golf to improve at the school. Proof of this is the fact that he recruited many junior high players such as Patrick Cont, Christian Williams, and Wayne Vinesett to play with the team explaining that "these students will become the outstanding players for Spartan High in the years to come." Coach Craig looked forward to the rest of the season as the golfers gained tournament experience in order to do well in the region tournament.

Pitching Key To Season

The baseball team was a very young one. There were only two returning seniors, and the team was under the direction of a new coach, Coach Dale Mulwee. Coach Mulwee anticipated leadership from returning seniors Mark Cavendish and Todd Hood. Outstanding young players who were expected to contribute to a successful season were Walter Doggett, pitcher; Gary Wilkins, center field; and David Dandola, right field. Among the sophomore players expected to contribute were Scott Wetmore pitcher; Benjamin King, pitcher; and Kerry Comer, second base.

The toughest competition came from the region champions, Gaffney and from strong Lancaster and Boiling Springs teams. The team added more games to its schedule, and they participated in the Blakely Invitational Baseball Tournament in Woodruff.

Anticipating the season, Coach Mulwee stated, "We should be improved in defense and hitting. Pitching will be the key to our season. If we get good pitching and our hitting improves, we can have a successful season."

The season of 1980-1981 for SHS Swimmers was far superior to past seasons. The team had unusual depth and quality. Coach John Vasbinder from St. Croix in the Virgin Islands headed the coaching staff which showed no sympathy during practice sessions. Vasbinder commented that it may have been easier to letter in the past, but he intended to make his varsity swimmers work to earn a letter.

Vasbinder was displeased with the "state's organization of swimming," and he feels that the swimmers deserve more recognition. These dedicated athletes swam up to four mornings and five afternoons every week with a total of 21 hours practice time. Vasbinder commented, "It is not uncommon for the better swimmers to swim 50,000 or more yards in a single week which does not even include the hour of weights every day."

The most surprising element of team was the number of younger swimmers coming from the junior highs. Nearly half of the team members had never set foot in Spartan High and yet contributed greatly to the team. Of course, the key swimmers were from Spartan High. Some of the outstanding members were: Jud Woolard, Greg Martin, Brian Kienlen, Martin Otto, Jay Klinck, Brian West, Ed McCall, Kelley Krokos, and Lori Smith.

Coach Vasbinder was pleased with both the boys' and girls' teams and he said that the girls' losing record did not reflect the quality of the girls' team. Vasbinder had few doubts that the girls' team would win the State Championship in May and he expected the boys' team to continue their rampage on S.C. high school teams.

Vasbinder is confident that the team will be even better next year, and he added that the new swim center was a contributing factor to the team's success this year.

Organizations

Everyone knows that there is more to school than the old traditional readin', writin', and 'rithmetic. Spartan High is a prime example of this belief. SHS has almost as many clubs to choose from as it does courses. The clubs are aimed toward involving the entire student body in some sort of activity or interest. Whether a student wanted to serve the community, learn a foreign language, or help the school in other ways, Spartan High had a club suited for them. With over 35 clubs to choose from, a student was sure to find something of interest to him. This has been the purpose of the clubs ever since their beginning.

Bridging The Gap

At the beginning of fifth period every day, thirty-three council members sit down and begin the arduous task of "bridging the gap" between the students and the administration.

The Student Advisory Council is a collective group consisting of student body officers, class officers, and class representatives. Established for the purpose of making recommendations to the administration concerning student problems and issues, Student Council also takes charge of such activities as student orientation, Homecoming activities, bonfires, and the Junior-Senior Prom.

Some of the newer approaches Council has had toward dealing with student body problems include suggestion boxes and home room visitations. Along with the traditional projects, new ones were planned, among them being a classic film series, a blood drive, and a student-faculty softball game.

This year the Student Advisory Council has been dedicated to the improvement of communication between students and administration. Unlike previous years, the response of students toward Council sponsored activities and projects has been tremendous.

Getting Involved

Homeroom presidents helped Student Council get the student body more involved in school activities. After being elected by their homeroom, they participated in an installation in front of the student body. Then they were ready to get started with their duties. A majority of the presidents assisted their homeroom teachers by reading the daily bulletin to let people know of upcoming activities.

The first big job was decorating the door in keeping with the homecoming theme. They stayed after school and used their creativity for the competition. At Thanksgiving each homeroom was given a family to feed. They collected canned goods and money to buy a turkey. Also Christmas was a time for giving, especially to children of less fortunate families. Each homeroom tried to make Christmas a special time for one child by collecting money to buy him presents. Besides this, the homeroom presidents attended meetings, during their homeroom periods, with student council members and Mr. John Wolfe.

Spreading the Christmas Spirit, Homeroom President, Ellen Lanford, and students, Tori Lee and Dana Shirley, wrap gifts for their sponsored child.

Recognizing Outstanding Scholarship

The Beta Club is an organization for honor students. The purpose of the club is to promote leadership and good citizenship in its members. The Beta Club carried out several successful projects. The members put together a student directory, sold carnations for Valentine's Day, and held a teacher service auction. There was a special installation ceremony for new members in January and a delegation was sent to the state convention in February.

A second club for honor students is the National Honor Society. NHS members began the year by selling M & M's to raise money to donate a new podium to the school. Also, a tutoring service was started for students needing extra help during their study hall. Other events were dinner meetings with excellent speakers and participation in the state convention held in Charleston.

Both the Beta Club and NHS were successful in bringing the achievements of outstanding SHS students to the attention of classmates, parents, and the community.

Waiting for the meeting to be called to order, Beta Club members catch up on all the news.

Promoting Christian Faith

ACT or Acknowledge Christ Today concentrated during the past year on promoting growth in the Christian Faith and ideals through word and example. Members met each Tuesday before school and twice a month after school for devotions and lecture discussions of current problems and Christian fellowship.

Spiritual, mental, and physical growth was the goal of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. Led by president Glen Brown, they met one Monday each month. Their projects included the Student Faculty Basketball Game, the concession stand at J.V. football games, and dinner for a needy family at Thanksgiving.

Promoting Spirit

SOSH-The Spirit of Spartan High and Block S were the clubs which organized and put to use the school spirit of SHS students. SOSH boosted the spirit for all sports matches by painting signs. These signs were to inform students of upcoming sports events and to improve attendance at all sports activities. SOSH also sold cowbells for the Dorman game and prepared the introductory banner for the Homecoming Parade.

The other side of the spirit was found inside the blue and gold letter jackets of SHS. Block S members busied themselves behind the concession stand at the basketball games. They supplied the crowd with cokes, candy, and popcorn to keep their spirit high throughout the games. The money raised from the concession stand was donated to the athletic department. Basically, the main purpose of Block S was to promote fellowship among the athletes of SHS and to uphold the Spartan High tradition of producing superior athletes.

Artistic Interest

The First Circle staff produced Spartan High's literary magazine. The magazine contained poetry, short stories, art and photography. The staff was open to all members of the student body, and member of the staff elected their own officers. Mr. Frank Austell was the advisor. The editors, Neal Moglin and Leigh Watson, decided which works to include, and edited those submitted with advice from Mr. Austell.

The staff tried to get as broad a range of the student body as possible, while selecting only the entries that had real merit. A contest was sponsored during the year for the best works and winners received recognition in the magazine.

The best stories are also submitted for publication in college literary magazines.

Interests in the theater influenced many students to join the Drama Club. Sponsored by Mrs. Nancy Whitaker, the Drama Club performed Deathtrap and This Property is Condemned.

Deathtrap was presented to the public March twenty-seventh through the twenty-ninth. The club members controlled backstage production along with prop construction. The second play, This Property is Condemned, was presented at the Palmetto Drama Festival in Rock Hill. Being a member of the Drama club included hard work and a love for the theater.

Scientific Interests

SECME stands for Southeastern Consortium for Minorities in Engineering and our organization at SHS was a representative group. SECME was designed to add more minorities in the field of engineering. The advisors, Mrs. Lizzie Marshall, Mrs. Naomi Siefert, Mrs. Jessie Small, and the president Gerald Peake worked together to plan tours to engineering schools and industries. The members were very fortunate to have professional engineers as guest speakers; some of whom brought material for demonstrations. SECME also entered the State Olympiad held at the University of South Carolina.

Community Helpers

The members of Anchor liked to feel that they are always there to help when the community and the school are in need. They continued to fulfill their commitment as a service club.

Anchor started off the year with their traditional tea for the faculty of SHS. Also early in the year, members sold candy to help pay for a new P.A. system for the school. Regular monthly activities included electing a playmate, scheduling dinner meetings, and going to Cedar Springs to entertain the children. They continued their school mail service with Christmas and Valentine Boxes, and once again they honored the male teachers on their birthdays. A new project that Anchor undertook was helping the Spartanburg Youth Theatre with props and scenery.

Through their involvement in all of these projects, plus many more, Anchor members felt that they succeeded in giving service with a friendly smile to all organizations and individuals.

Daring To Influence

Key members, led by Frank Lyles, took an active part in the community and school life by providing their services and time in every way possible. They were involved in many projects to help both school and community. All their projects were related to the theme "Dare to Influence."

To help the school, members cleaned the courtyard and the senior lounge. To boost school spirit, they sold spirit ribbons before the football games. The annual football game with Interact was one of the highlights of the year.

Key's activities also took place outside the school. Monthly trips to Cedar Springs included children's Halloween and Christmas parties sponsored jointly with Anchor. During December, they parked cars for the Holiday Home Tour and went Christmas caroling at the Archibald Rutledge Apartments.

Each activity, in school and out, helped members learn the meaning of responsibility and acquire a sense of leadership by taking an influential role in community and school affairs.

Civinette Service

Civinettes is one of the girls' clubs which provides service for the school and the community. The club met monthly to set up various projects. Favorites included entertaining kids at the children's shelter and honoring a guidance counselor each month. A special treat for club members at Christmas involved secret Santas. Each Civinette drew the name of another Civinette and kept her supplied with presents for the week.

Other projects for Civinettes included taking calls at the Youth Employment Office with Key Club. The girls went caroling at a local nursing home. They sponsored a Thanksgiving party at the nursing home plus a Halloween party for the Children's Shelter.

Each Spring, Civinettes go to a statewide convention sponsored by the Civitan Club. Throughout the year the club endeavored to promote the ideals of the Civitan Club in the school and the community.

Continuing Traditions

Among the goals of the Interact club are to serve the school and community through various projects, and to promote leadership qualities in its members. In order to achieve these goals, Interact remained busy throughout the school year.

Interact continued with their traditional services to the school. Members were responsible for raising and lowering the flag, ushering at football games, selling spirit buttons, and taking the Junior-Senior Prom pictures. Naturally, there was also the annual football game with their rival, Key club.

Interact was also active in service to the community through its work with the Spartanburg County Parks and Recreation Department and the Arts Council. In December, members participated in Operation Santa Claus, and also worked at the Children's Christmas parade at Westgate Mall. In the spring, they helped with the Easter Rock distribution and with the Spring Fling.

Through the outstanding services of Interact, the members discovered that there is a learning experience in becoming involved, as well as a feeling of satisfaction.

Showing their support for the Vikes, Michael Stortz and David Hudgens sell spirit buttons.

Z Club is one of the five service clubs that helped to meet the constant demands for volunteer services at school and in the community. Beginning early, in the school year, Z Club members assisted with student orientation and ushered at PTA. They boosted the morale of the numerous athletic teams by sending candy favors to each Viking participant and by painting spirit signs.

Some past projects that continued consisted of volunteer work at the Red Cross and the Deaf and Blind School. Devoted volunteers worked weekly and monthly to fulfill their duties as Z Club members. Another project was the annual Zonta-Classic sponsored by Zonta International. The girls sold ads for the programs for this Christmas holiday basketball tournament and also worked at the concession stand during the games. All in all, the year was a busy one for Z-Club members.

Cultural Exchange

The French Club activities included a French cheese-tasting party, a crepe party, celebration of French holidays. The object of the club was to further understand French customs and culture. Students enjoyed cider cheese, and french bread during the cheese party. The crepe party was also enjoyable with members bringing various recipes. February's activities included a candy sale and soccer match against the German club. The candy sale's profits went towards paying for the Mardi Gras and St. Catherine's Day celebration.

The Black History Club started the year by entering a car in the Homecoming parade. During Black History Week, teachers were encouraged to choose a famous black person dealing with their subject and to discuss his contribution in their respective field. For Careers Day, the club asked local black professionals to come and discuss their careers with members. Teachers' Appreciation Day was recognized by the club with a reception prepared by the members.

Planning Black History Week, Kelvin Stroble asks the advice of other club officers, Valerie Cleveland and Sandra McIntyre.

Celebrating Foreign Holidays

The German Club, under the leadership of President Paula Binovec, acquainted themselves with the Germanic culture by celebrating some of the country's holidays: Oktoberfest, Christmas, and Fasching. Oktoberfest, a fall festival held annually in Germany, was celebrated by a cultural dinner. Afterwards, German waltzes and polkas were taught by Mr. and Mrs. Tomas Binovec.

The Christmas party enabled members to complete their community project. An elaborate gingerbread house was made at the party and donated to the Spartanburg Children's Shelter. Fasching, held two weeks before Lent, was recognized by a dinner with other foreign language clubs. The club invited other language clubs for one evening of cultural exchange. After dinner, waltzes were taught by German mem-

The Spanish Club's activities also included celebrating the native holidays. Columbus Day, Christmas, and Valentine's Day were among the holidays celebrated by the club. They also participated in the German Club's Fasching. Columbus Day, a very popular Spanish holiday, was celebrated with games and refreshments. For the Christmas Fiesta, a pinata made by the members was broken.

One of the principle civic projects was the adoption of a child through CCF. The child was sent money for food and other necessities. He also received cards for special occasions made and signed by the members.

Both clubs experienced a deeper understanding of other languages and cultures through their membership and activities.

After breaking open the pinata, Spanish students await gifts and candy.

Assisting In The Media Center

Working in the media center is an important and time consuming job. There were three student groups at Spartan High to fill that job this year, A.V. workers, I.T.V. workers, and library workers. A.V. and I.T.V. members are responsible for ordering films, issuing equipment, and helping teachers use the equipment properly. The A.V. workers set up all P.A. systems for football games and pep rallies. I.T.V. produced District 7 television shows and instant replay films of games.

The library workers are students who gave up their study halls and free time before and after school to serve others. Their duties included taking inventory, checking out books and finding information and magazines for students. All media center aides gained valuable experience for the future while furnishing their services to the school.

Making a last minute check Todd Humphries reviews schedules for A.V. equipment.

Finding a requested magazine, library worker Lynn Kirby assists students in the media center.

Lights, camera, action-I.T.V. workers make a film for District 7.

Canteen workers Tracy Early and Tina Duffey sell cookies and crackers to hungry students after school.

Supervising the canteen, Mr. Horace Reese sometimes sells food during senior study hall.

Because of new state laws the Coke machine stands idle until after second lunch.

Canteen Workers: Fron row: Sonya Hester, Robin Johnson, Asst. Man. Back row: Ann Hester, Paula Allen, Traci Smith.

Helping Hands

Before some of us are even out of bed, the canteen workers are hard at work to prepare the canteen. But they don't stop there. During school and after, the workers sell snack food, fill machines, roll money, and clean the canteen area. Preparing the canteen for hungry students is hard work.

Another group serving the faculty and the students are the office workers. Students apply to be office workers each semester. They work during their study halls answering phones, posting mail, and running errands for teachers, principals, and secretaries.

Office Workers Jackie Tucker, Adrienne Jessamy, and Raymond Gist find leisure time between running errands.

Delivering mail to teachers' boxes is one of the daily duties of office worker Victor Gary.

Pursuing Careers

Health Careers Club represented the volunteer candystripers of SHS. Members worked at General Hospital on Tuesday afternoons assisting nurses in their care of patients. As a club, they also aided the Red Cross in clerical work. The club's purpose was to give each member a chance to explore possibilities in a health related career and to aid the community through their interest. Terry Mullis was awarded Outstanding Candystriper of the Year. Other community involvement was shown by the club's donating time to Meals on Wheels and their support of the Great American Smoke-Out.

Another career oriented club is F.H.A., Future Homemakers of America. Their goal was to help youth assume their roles in society through home economic education. Their Christmas project was the delivery of food and money for coal to an elderly couple. In February, they participated in the National Future Homemakers of America Week and ended the week with a skating party. The year proved to be successful for both F.H.A. and Health Careers by preparing them for community and vocational duties.

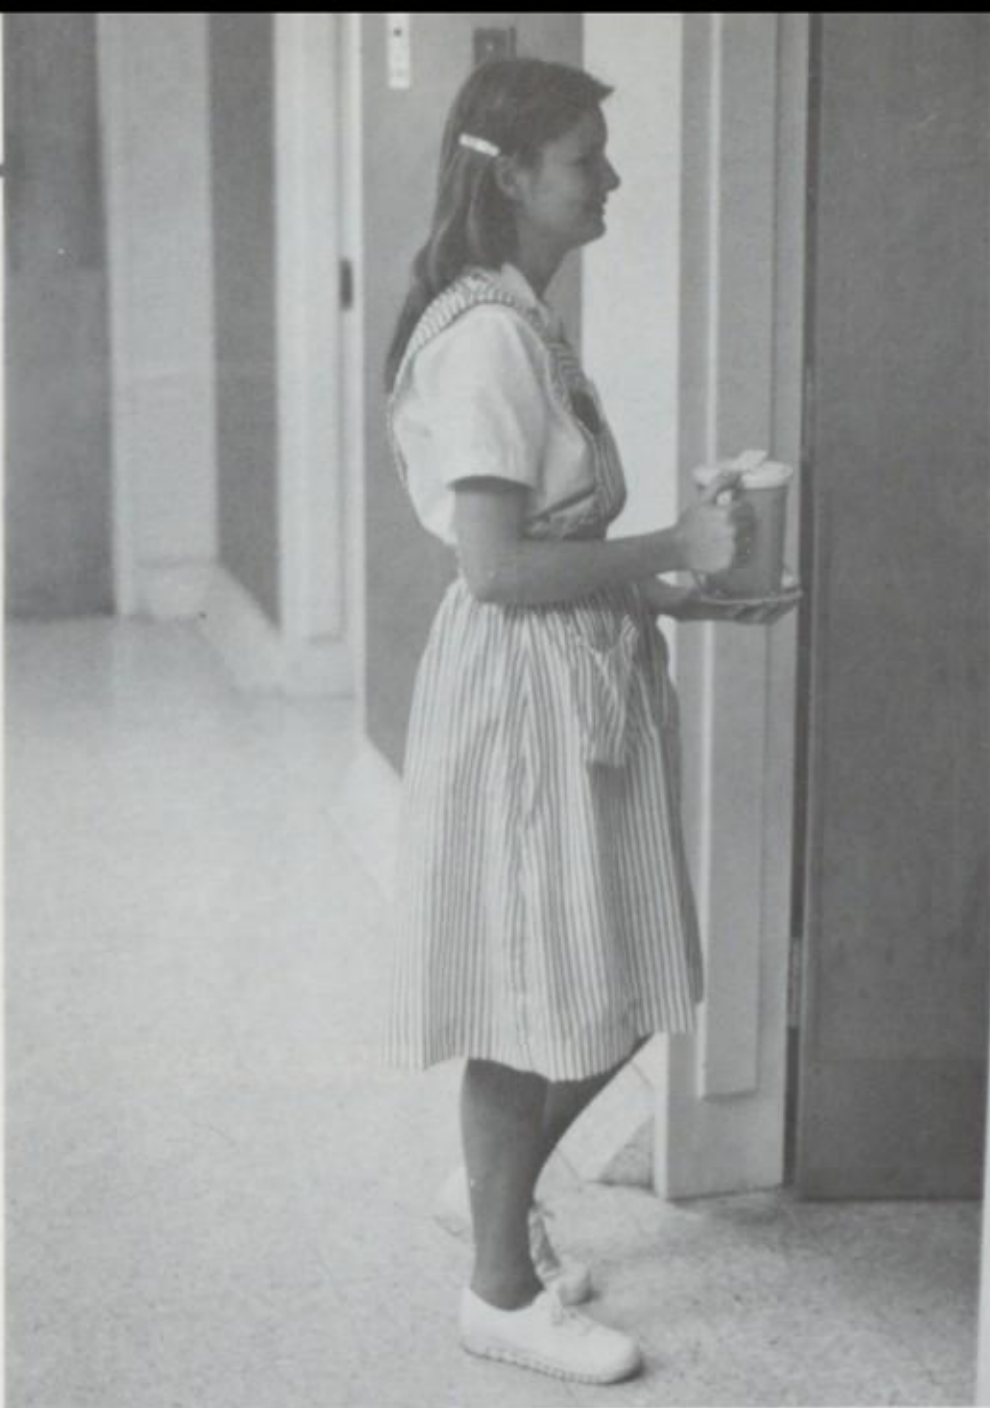

F.H.A. Member, Kelly Foster, catches up on the latest F.H.A. news at their regular business meeting.

Putting Talents Into Action

Did you know that the Art Club is open to all the students whether they are art students or not? The club was designed to facilitate students with art projects. There were fifteen active students with Margie Leonard, president; Carol Durham, vice president; and Chandra McClintock serving as secretary/treasurer. Their afternoon programs consisted of scheduled speakers from the Art Institute of Atlanta, various speakers from colleges, and lettering posters for school activities. The big project for the club was designing and making the props and decorations for the Junior-Senior Prom, which turned out to be a great success. The Art Club was fun and worthwhile for its members.

Did you ever dream of skiing down a snowy mountain with a bunch of school pals? Well, the Ski Club turned this dream into a reality. In order to diminish the high costs of snow skiing, the club sold M&M candy to raise money. They went on various weekend trips to Sugar and Beech Mountain. With around fifty active members, different groups alternate going on the trips. The trips were designed to provide a recreational sport for the members on a more frequent basis. Both the Ski club and Art club fulfilled their purpose by allowing their members to advance in their interests.

Trying on a variety of ski jackets, Ricky Conn prepares for his weekend ski trip.

Concentrating on her art project, Cynthia Irby puts the finishing touches on her necklace.

Blocking out all other distractions, Bobby Johnson finishes a timely project.

Art: First row: Mr. Tom Willis, Advisor; Margie Leonard, Pres.; Margie Grimm, Carol Durham, Vice Pres.; Lisa Gist, Marie Elam, Laura Crowder, Mr. MacArthur Goodwin, Advisor. Second Row: Ellen Lanford, Murray Phillips, Liz Charak, Kimberly Taylor, Michael Riddle, Chris Rowell, Lisa Thornton, Antionette Edwards.

With excitement over their finished product, Art students use helpful criticism.

Work Experience

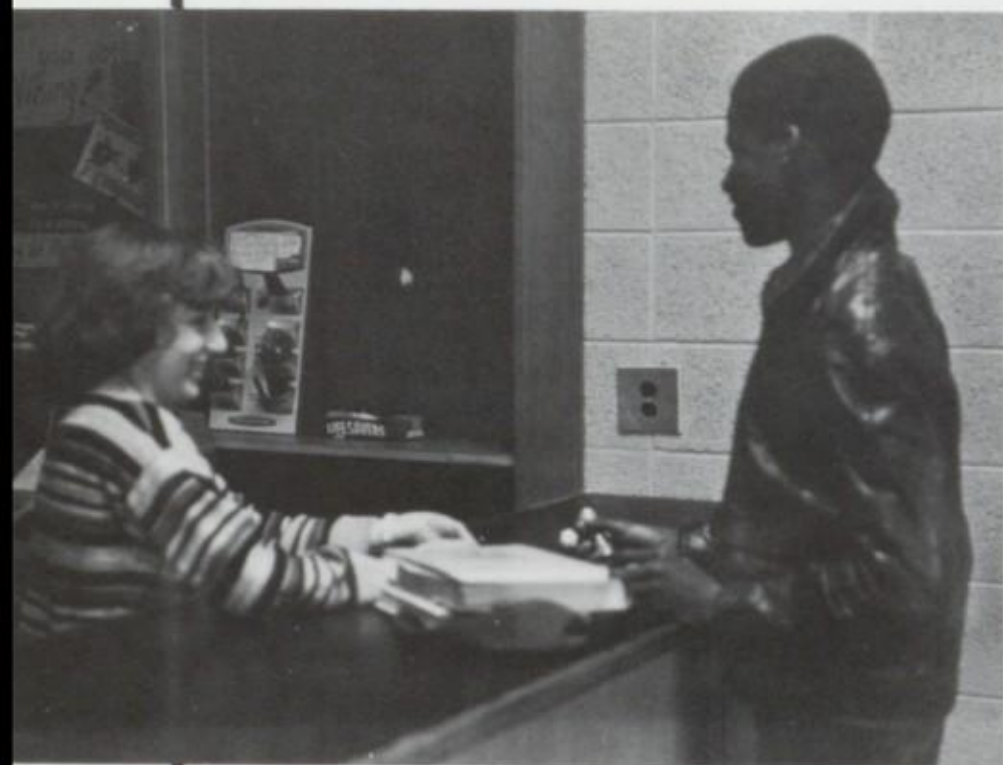

The Wheelers or Bus Drivers of Spartan High performed a great service for district schools. It is a service which was seldomly recognized. Our Wheelers continued to serve in rain or snow as well as extremely hot or cold temperatures, and early hours of the morning. They put up with smart remarks, fights, paper wads, and bubble gum. Yet through thick and thin the satisfaction was at its greatest when the school children realized the Wheeler is their friend. As well as doing a great service to the schools, the Wheelers received experience which benefits future jobs.

The Distributive Education Club of America or DECA helped students learn to deal with the consumer in giving goods and services. The club also prepared students for a career in marketing. DECA had twenty-two members, each having a job for which they received school credit. Some jobs for students were at grocery stores, restaurants, tire services, jewelry stores and clothing stores.

The classroom work reinforced what was done on the job. Part of their training took place in the classroom, where they are helped with problems which arose at work. The members of DECA received two grades. One grade was based on their study of the marketing business in class, and the other on their work experience. Thus DECA helped the individual while helping the marketing business as a whole.

Working in the Viking Vendor DECA member Rhonda Thomas sells candy and school supplies to Jamie Knuckles.

During a business class DECA members get a chance to ask questions and discuss personal work experiences.

Waiting for the afternoon rush, bus drivers prepare to begin their daily routes.

Classes

With all the people at Spartanburg High School, it is quite possible to see new faces each day in the halls. Although SHS is one of the largest schools in the state, the atmosphere which surrounds it makes it seem much smaller than it really is. Many advantages are possible with a large school. A variety of clubs are available for membership which are suited to many different interests and personalities. Sports also provides an opportunity for students to express their talents as do many other programs at Spartan High. Therefore, the high quality of students proves that it is possible to have a friendly, involved, and large high school.

Chorus members practice their routine for a performance.

Orchestra members devote many hours to practice in order to improve their level of performance.

During warm weather, Student Council members hold their meeting outside in the courtyard.

Senior Class Beauties

For these fourteen seniors, this was their last opportunity to be acknowledged by their peers as class beauties. Some of them have been nominated all three years of their stay at Spartanburg High School and it was the very first time for others. Being nominated as a class beauty has traditionally been an honor at Spartanburg High, and those who have received it at one time or another are highly thought of and admired by their classmates.

Outstanding Seniors For 1981

Outstanding Seniors are nominated and voted on by the faculty at Spartan High. They are chosen as in years past on the basis of leadership, scholarship, athletic ability, fine arts ability, and service. The faculty is allowed to choose as many seniors as they feel deserve the award. This year, sixteen members of the Senior class were chosen.

Female Scientists Excell

A team consisting of nine girls participated for Spartan High in a Science Olympiad held at Converse College. Contests such as a titration race, rat race, cross number puzzle, and "Name That Organ" were offered. In tough Science Bowl questioning, Spartan High went against rival Dorman in the finals. For the second year in a row, A Spartan High team won the Outstanding overall trophy. This plus the trophy for Science Bowl finalist were brought to Mrs. Bane, who coordinated the team. Later they were presented to principal Joseph Delaney. The Science Olympiad at Converse is a program to promote science among women. It is a field still relatively unopen, but more and more women are becoming trained and involved in scientific professions. This Olympiad inspires interest and competitiveness through a day of fun. It offered many high schools the chance to get together to compare and express their views. As for the science team, next year they hope to make it three in a row.

Recognized for their excellence in science, Rebecca Brenneman, Rita Bridges, Rainey Sanders, Pam Fontenot, (back row); Joan Cheng, Laura Zoole, Karen Smiley, and Cathy Yaden display their trophy.

A.P. Biology gives Leigh Watson and Kathy Ritchie a chance to use their scientific knowledge.

Excitement On The Rapids

Plunging through white spray and running rapids, dodging rocks, maneuvering in and out of holes created by the natural hydrolic system, and wondering what the next curve of the river will bring are what canoeing is all about. While some of us spend our Saturday afternoons going shopping or watching football games, Jan Phillips and Catherine Metz retreat to the near-by rivers to enjoy the white-water canoeing. White-water canoeing got its name from the white water that is created by churning, foaming water of rapid flowing rivers. Jan and Catherine first became interested in canoeing when they went rafting with the Girl Rangers down the Chattugga. They have canoed down the Green, Broad, Nantahala, and Chattugga Rivers with other white-water enthusiasts, at least one of whom is an experienced canoeist. The rivers are classified into three stages of difficulty. Jan and Catherine usually canoe in rapids of Class III and IV, for which maneuvering skills are necessary. Life jackets, shoes, and an extra paddle are required safety equipment. Jan and Catherine look upon white-water canoeing as a challenge and as a means of acquiring a sense of accomplishment . . . remaining in their canoes through out the rapids! As loyal white-water canoeists, they uphold the river tradition: if you don't swim on the rapids, you get thrown in at the end of the run.

A Special Calling

Many high school students have jobs leading to a good future career. One often finds young people working toward computer programming, technical skills, dentistry and other careers that capture students' attention. One career that many high school students aren't flocking to is ministry. Many young people feel that the ministry is only for older people.

Kenneth Armstrong, a senior, proved this to be untrue. He recently received a Master's Degree in Religion. Although he is not a minister in full, he holds service at least once a month at the Corner Stone Baptist Church. "I was baptized at fourteen, and by the time I reached fifteen, I was called to ministry," stated Kenneth. Kenneth's mother is a librarian at Spartanburg High. He states that his mother, along with the rest of his family, were great parts of his inspiration to preach. When approached Mrs. Armstrong commented, "I'm very proud of Kenny; when he was baptized my first words were: He's a man now!" Kenneth hopes to continue his education in a college affiliated with religion. He says if all his plans and goals are achieved, it will be a short period of time before he has his Bachelor's Degree. His long range goal would be to have a church of his own. "I feel with faith and determination I can achieve this."

A very unique teenager, Ken Armstrong devotes much of his time to the ministry.

Can You Believe It? It's Magic!

Maybe it sounds unusual, but it's true. Greg Whisnant is a magician. Greg first became interested in magic when he was twelve. He figured out how to make an elephant disappear by watching Doug Henning on television. It wasn't until later that Greg realized this guess was correct.

Greg does most of his magical performances for business promotions and church organizations. Last year he performed at Westgate Mall for a three day engagement. Because Greg likes the reactions of small children towards magic, he enjoys performing for children's birthday parties.

If Greg charges a fee, it's based on travel and the length of his magic show. During the show, Greg does mostly close-up magic by himself.

Greg hopes someday to own his own magic shop. He also stated he would be interested in teaching magic to children. Greg says, "I'm not a professional yet." But watch!

After figuring out how to make an elephant disappear, Greg Whisnant decided to become a magician.

Mark Bryant, age 17, received his South Carolina State Barbers License at the age of 16. Mark trained under the well-known Bobby Cheatwood at Spartanburg College of Scientific Hair and Skin Care. Mark attended this college after school every day for nine months (or a total of 1568 hours) beginning in his sophomore year. He has been in the hair styling profession since the age of 15. Mark has become one of the youngest precision hair stylists in Spartanburg. Not only did Mark achieve his goals at a young age but he also obtained a license as a professional Electrolysis and Facial Therapist. Mark is now working at Horton's Barber Shop along with the owner, barber stylist Gene Horton and barber stylist W.N. Gardner. Mark is also a competitive hair stylist. He has already won one competition held here in Spartanburg and is making plans to enter many other competitions throughout the United States.

Thanks to fellow students, Mark Bryant's hair cutting techniques are popular among his peers.

Towing The Line

Mark Parrish, a junior at SHS, works with his father running the Interstate Wrecker service. He works in the Piedmont area and has been working for one and a half years. Working during the week and on the weekends, he helps pick up wrecked or disable automobiles and in some cases he has helped rescue people who were trapped beneath their cars. Mark also does maintenance work not only on the wreckers, but also on the cars that come into the shop. The Wrecker Service has twelve wreckers that must be kept up. It must be a responsible job to keep up with school, twelve wreckers, and whatever else may come along.

Learning the importance of the wrecker service for his Dad, Mark Parrish gains new skills as well as some extra money.

In Mrs. Marian Leonard's third period typing class, students practice letter-writing and other basic skills.

The Governor's School 1980

Governor's Scholars: Front: Rebecca Brenneman, Ani Miyares, Lucia Davis, Duncan Alford. Back: Susan Spieth, Michael Stortz, Leigh Watson, Dimitri Demopoulos, Martin Otto.

Every summer, high school students from all over South Carolina spend six weeks in Charleston attending the Governor's School. School during the summer does not sound appealing to most students, but the few lucky ones who are chosen to attend the Governor's School enjoy every minute of it. This past summer nine students from Spartanburg High were selected to attend.

Even though each scholar chooses one subject concentration, the six weeks are not spent doing solely academic work. Among the classes attended are a "values" class and a career development class. All of the classes are taught in a college atmosphere, and they are designed to prepare the student for the future, whether it be in a subject of their particular interest or in a "values" seminar.

After classes are over in the morning, the rest of the day is spent as the student wishes. Sports clinics, art classes, beach outings, and dances are just a few of the choices for the scholars in their free time.

As the six weeks come to a close and it is time for everyone to return to their hometown, there are mixed emotions of sadness and joy. It is the sadness of leaving the new friends one has grown so close to, and the joy of having a taste of college life, and feeling better prepared for the future.

A Real Swinger

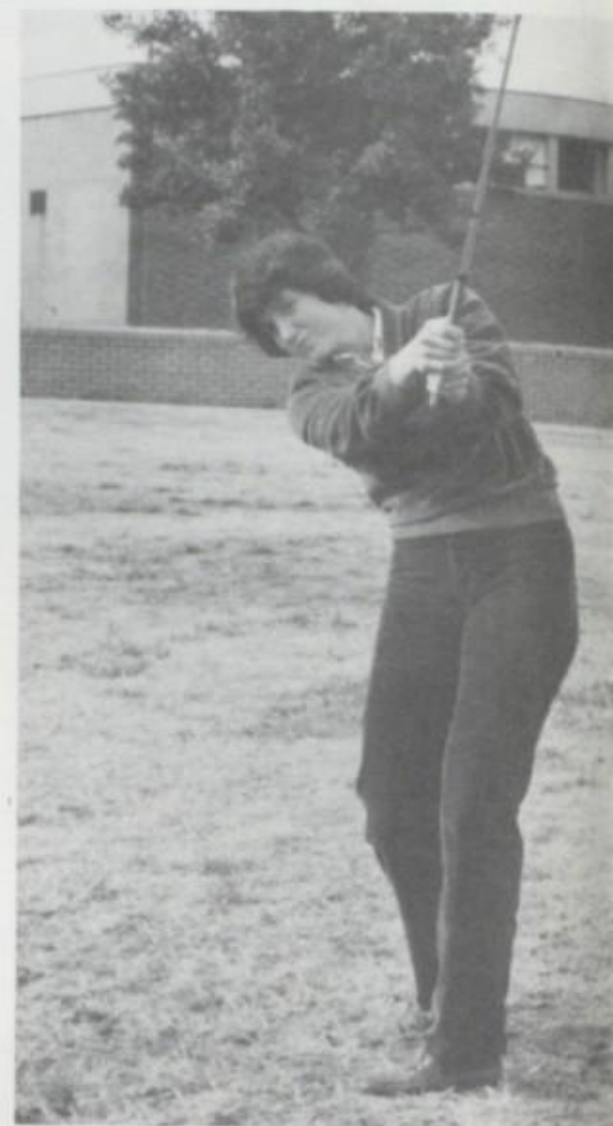

When Sara Anne Timms yells "Fore," watch for one of the best amateur golfers in Spartanburg. Qualifying in a field of sixty-four for the U.S. Amateur in a sudden death playoff, winning first flight of the Woman's Western Golf Association Junior Girl's championship in Iowa and placing twenty-fifth in the Junior World Tournament in San Diego, California, in a field of 120 girls are a few of the many laurels that Sara Anne has received.

Somehow she has also managed to squeeze in student council activities, the Anchor service club, lettering in girls' basketball and running the long distant events for the track team at SHS. She is also co-editor of the SAGA.

Whether she is playing 1980 American Junior Golf Association Tournament of Champions at Inverrary Golf Club in Fort Lauderdale or winning the 1980 ladies club championship at Huntington Hills Country Club for the second time, Sara Anne is showing each of us why many of the major universities are considering her for an invitation to "swing" for them.

Exhibiting her golf swing, Sara Anne Timms follows through after a shot.

Youth Involvement In Red Cross

What do you think of when you hear about a national disaster? If you're like most youth, you think of the Red Cross rushing into the stricken area to aid survivors. But this isn't all the Red Cross does for people: they have many daily tasks performed by trained officials and local volunteers like Kathleen McGee. She was promoted to youth representative of the Red Cross Board of Directors. Her job is to promote community youth involvement in the Red Cross. She started as a volunteer member through Z Club, a SHS service club. Her interest grew and Ron Ward, a member of the Red Cross staff, asked Kathleen if she would go to Christmont Camp for a week. This was summer training program for volunteers. She agreed and took leadership training, initiation of programs such as bloodmobiles, and courses to increase youth involvement. The Red Cross's goal this year is to increase SHS and other local high schools' participation in activities. They hope to create a large youth volunteer program to continue through the years. Kathleen explained, "We're just beginning, but hopefully we can start a solid youth program for later years!"

Sitting at her desk, Kathleen McGee enjoys helping others through volunteer work.

To The Rescue!

Have you ever wondered who those brave and dedicated people are who fight fires and answer rescue calls? One such person is David Boukedes. He is a volunteer fireman for the Hilltop Fire Department. David first became interested when friends of his joined the program but has continued because he enjoys helping people in need. Since joining the group two years ago, David has participated in a two month training program that gave him needed knowledge in fire fighting techniques. Here he learned how to fight different kinds of fires as safely and efficiently as possible. These and additional hours of training have qualified him to be a member of the Fireman's Association.

Fire fighting is not David's only service to his community. As a member of the department's rescue team, he has been trained to drive the rescue vehicle. The Red Cross has certified him in CPR and first aid. A goal David hopes to realize in the near future is to become certified as an EMT or Emergency Medical Technician.

Volunteer firemen such as David are notified of an emergency over scanners and by the Civil Defense alert siren. A call may come any time of the day or night, and available firemen rush to the station. The call could mean a fire, automobile accident, shooting, heart attack, or other emergency. Volunteers are often needed five or six times a day; it's nice to know that David Boukedes and others are ready to help.

Ready to help any minute, Fireman David Boukedes devotes spare time to the Hilltop Fire Dept.

Mr Goodwrench Hits S.H.S.

For approximately eight years, auto mechanics has held the interest of Alfonzo Allen, a senior at SHS. His interest developed while tampering with simple machinery such as mini bikes and lawnmowers. At an early age, he began working at his father's auto mechanic garage where he was influenced by his father and brothers. At first he only performed tasks such as sweeping and cleaning. Then, while gradually learning to work on cars, he developed an overall mechanical ability. He has used this ability to modify his junior and senior class float, both of which have won in the homecoming competition. From a counselor, he learned that he could pursue his interest through a summer program offered at Clemson University for minorities in engineering. He applied, was accepted, and has attended this program for the last two summers. Because of interest, experience, and ability in mechanics, he plans to attend Clemson, majoring in mechanical engineering. His unique ability and years of experience have made him an outstanding student at SHS.

An experienced mechanic, Alfonzo Allen plans to major in mechanical engineering at Clemson.

Junior Class Beauties

Class beauties are nominated on the basis of charm, personalitiy, popularity, but most of all on personal appearance and attractiveness. The class beauties were voted on in October, but the results were not known until May when the yearbook was distributed. That left time for curiosity on the part of the student body. These fourteen students were voted as class beauties by the Junior Class.

D.C.-The Place To Be

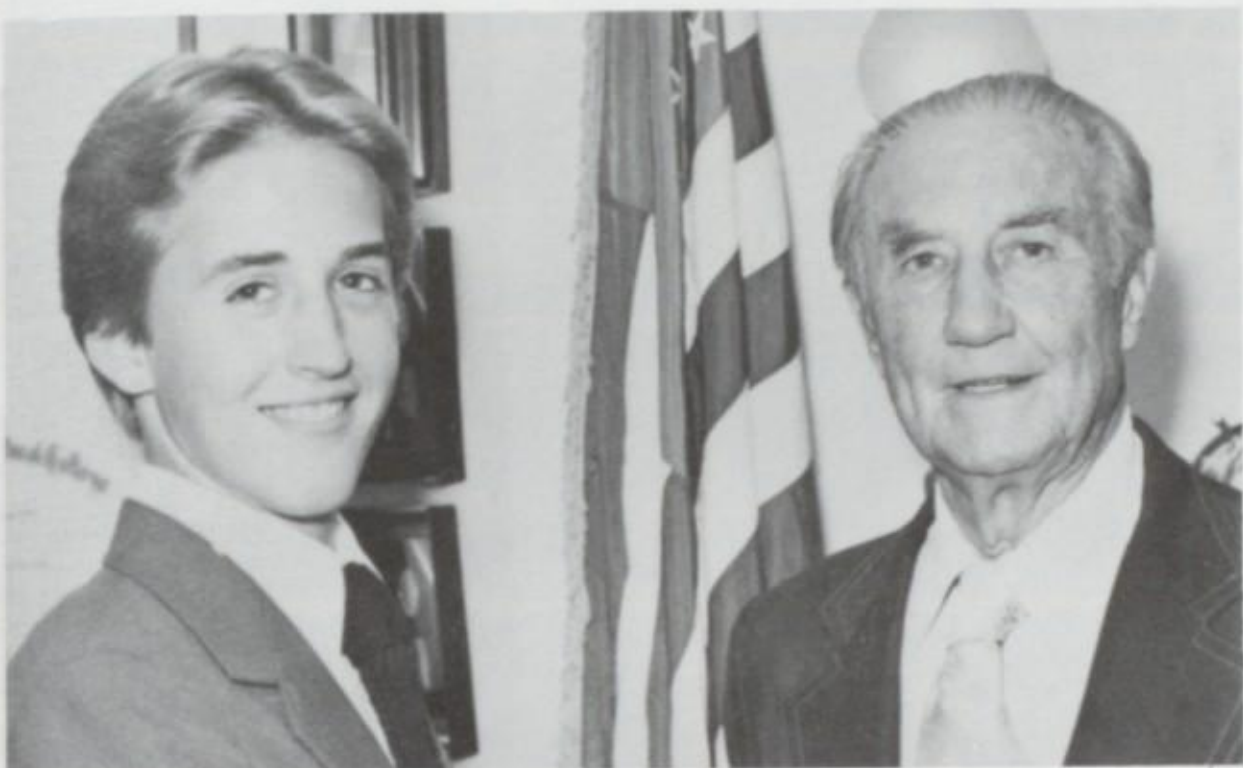

Summer jobs are very popular among high school students and Trey Gowdy, a junior at SHS, had a very unique summer job. This past August, Trey spent the entire month in Washington, D.C. working as an office page for S.C. Senator, Strom Thurmond. Trey was one of five lucky South Carolinians chosen for this position. The duties of an office page include sorting mail, getting breakfast for the senators, hand-delivering letters, and many more general office tasks. Among the fringe benefits of being a page are earning good pay, working on a one-to-one basis with U.S. senators, sitting in on Congressional sessions, and being on your own for a month. Trey liked everything about serving as a page, but he especially enjoyed sitting in on the Billy Carter hearings that went on during his stay in Washington.

As far as his future in politics, Trey plans to continue campaigning for Strom Thurmond along with Carroll Campbell and Ronald Reagan, and he also plans to serve as an intern for Campbell when he is a freshman in college. As for becoming a politician himself, Trey feels that he is "too conservative to be elected."

Representing South Carolina, Trey Gowdy and Senator Strom Thurmond work together on Capitol Hill.

Up And Coming-BMX Racing

Bunning hopping dirt trails, whoopde-dooing through ant hills, rat trapping, and indoing. If these terms are unfamiliar, you probably aren't a BMX (bicycle motor cross) competitor. And who should think that a girl would be interested in this rough, exciting, and sometimes dangerous sport? Well, Libba West is a true example. Libba, a junior, first got interested in BMX when she saw her boyfriend, who races, doing tricks on his bike. He familiarized Libba with the basic stunts and equipment used in BMX, and also took her to a BMX race competition in Shelby, N.C. And as the saying goes, "she tried it and she liked it."

In a very short time, Libba enthusiastically learned skills and tricks on how to maneuver a bike to perform the best. Libba's parents bought her a Redliner bike, one of the best for BMX. The BMX bikes resemble a motorcycle in its overall structure. Libba also had to meet requirements of a BMX race competitor; wear a protection helmet, elbow pads, knee pads, and tennis shoes. Libba's first race was in Rock Hill this past summer. Out of fifty competitors in the Novice Division (beginners), there were only three girls, including Libba. The race consisted of a dirt trail containing ant hills, burms (enbanked curves), and whoopdedoos (1 ft. high hills). The racers were tested on skill to overcome their obstacles and their timing. Libba came home with one first place ribbon and two second place ribbons.

Because the racing season is from spring to the end of summer, Libba has lots of time to practice and brush up on her talent. When asked what she gets out of this unusual sport, Libba replies, "I love winning and BMX is an exhilarating sport; and because not many girls do this type of sport, it makes it unique."

A Gift To Others

April Davis is a volunteer at the Deaf and Blind School. She showed interest in the volunteer work when one of her friends started to work at Cedar Springs for the Z Club. April gives these children two hours a week of her time and love. She tries to work individually with each of the girls, whose ages range from 11-20. April not only works with the deaf and blind girls, but also multi-handicapped and some mentally retarded girls. On each Monday, April talks, plays, and watches T.V. with the girls. Then she helps them get ready for supper and she also helps feed the girls their meals. After supper, they usually listen to records. When new girls are added to the dormitory, April must explain to them that she has a handicap as she is not an expert in sign language yet. April says, "The girls make me appreciate how lucky I am to have a normal life. The children have taught me that you can be happy even with a handicap." She also stresses that the school still takes in volunteers and she believes it would be worth anyone's time to spend a few hours a week with the children. April feels she will pursue a career in this field after college. She is definitely a remarkable and understanding person.

Enjoying each other's company, April Davis and a friend share a few laughs together.

A Foreign Affair At Clemson

Saturday, November 15, a group of students went to the 10th Annual Clemson Declamation Contest. In preparation for this event, foreign language students had to memorize two poems in either German, French, or Spanish. Many hours were spent after school reciting their poems and learning how to project their voices.

The students, along with Mrs. Billie Edmonds, Mrs. Betty Carver, Mrs. Robin Johnson and Mr. Richard Fowler arrived at Clemons at 9:00 a.m. Then came the long wait before each person had to recite his or her poem in front of four judges. Later everyone participating in the contest gathered in the auditorium to sing songs in French, German, Spanish, and Latin.

The suspense mounted as the winners were announced and Spartanburg High was recognized as the school with the most teachers participating. The students also were a credit to Spartanburg High by winning honors in the French, Spanish, and German divisions.

Excelling in their respective languages are Melanie Messer, Chandra McClintock, Tara Marrow, Camille Smart, Karla Binovec, Yvonne Suter, Lindsey Kelly and Paula Binovec.

Diving In To Olympic Stardom

Swimming may be summer fun to some people, but to Jud Woolard it is a lot of hard work. Jud, a junior, has been swimming since third grade. Now he hopes to represent the Virgin Islands in the 1984 Olympics.

Jud is a member of the Spartaquatics swim team. He is a sprinter, with the breaststroke his best event. The swimmers undergo a regiment of stretching and weight lifting alternated with hours in the pool.

Growing up in the Virgin Islands, Jud was encouraged by his parents to swim. His hobbies include surfing, diving, and skiing.

Jud acknowledges the disappointment of the 1980 games being cancelled. He plans to return to the islands in a few months to begin training. Through workouts and discipline, he may reach his goal of competing in the Olympics.

A competitive swimmer, Jud Woolard hopes to qualify for the 1984 Olympics.

To be chosen as a class beauty their first year at Spartanburg High School was an honor shared by these fourteen sophomores. Many students were nominated by their fellow classmates, but the ones with the most tallied votes were named as Sophomore Class Beauties. Honors like this inspire many sophomores to strive for more recognition.

Light On Their Feet

Karen McAbee and Doran Cooke seem to float through the air like feathers. They are both gymnasts. Doran has taken gymnastics for four years, and Karen has taken it for seven years. They both had preliminary training at the YMCA. After learning the fundamentals of gymnastics, they continued lessons at the Greenville World of Gymnastics. Karen and Doran later taught gymnastics at the YMCA and at the Greenville World of Gymnastics.

A gymnast's day is a long one. Four hours of practice must be done every day to keep in shape. The first two hours are for strength work to loosen the muscles. The second two hours are for hard gymnastics. Karen says, "We use all forms of gymnastics equipment: uneven bars, balance beam, and vault."

Karen and Doran have attended many gymnastic meets. For three years they both attended the South Carolina State Meet winning medals each year. Karen and Doran are state wide champions and junior olympic champions. They both plan to continue gymnastics.

Performing a split, Doran Cooke and Karen McAbee show the flexibility a gymnast must have.

Rocking To A New Beat

Adios Rock-n-Roll, hello New Wave. The tide in American music is definitely changing and the wave which has hit the West Coast, as well as SHS, is New Wave. The electronic, punkish beats which characterize New Wave have swept the nation and aside from being a definite trademark of the 1980's, it boasts many new American music groups including Blondie, The Cars, Talking Heads, The B-52's, Elvis Costello, and the ever-popular Devo!

The New Wave music has been compared to punk rock but the two are very different styles of music. As David McDuffie, an ardent New Waver, states, "Punk and New Wave started at the same time (1976), yet Punk rock has had its heyday and really died around 1978." The main difference is that Punk rock began as a protest against "bad" pop music, and lyrics of Punk rock are often serious, while New Wave songs concern many different topics and use energetic and sixty-ish rhythms. Punk dealt with alienation and commercialism, and what Elvis Costello calls, "emotional fascism."

So while the tide is high for New Wave, many SHS students foresee an even brighter future for it. Thanks to this new music, different dance techniques such as the Pogo are making dancing and music listening much more adventurous.

New Wave hits Coach Jane Albright's, first period physical education class.

Celebrating Christopher Columbus Day, Mike Riddle recites a Spanish poem for Mrs. Marcelina Goodlett.

Do you ever get bored doing plain, ordinary exercises? The Spartanburg YMCA gives women of all ages the chance to get in shape and have fun at the same time. The "Y" offered a course called Aerobic Dance. This type of dance is a form of exercising which aims to improve the cardiovascular system. The eight week sessions emphasized dance routines combined with jazz exercise. This course had been offered before, but was never too popular among the young girls. However, its popularity grew to approximately one-hundred women and teen-agers each session. Many of the girls at SHS participated in this class. Avis Weathers felt, "The class was a fun way of getting in shape and losing weight." Beth Walpole said, "I tried not to miss any of the classes because I felt they were worthwhile." Other students, Teresa Martin, Cindy Powell, and Juile Anderson, assisted the classes on Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday nights from 7:00-8:00. Exercising is done to beach music and hit songs. What a great way of exercising!

Warming up with some music, these SHS students participate in the aerobic dance class.

The West Heads East

In the past few years, movies have had a great influence on American society. This year's number one box office attraction was John Travolta in "The Urban Cowboy". It has had national and local effects on disco and rock-n-roll lovers. Once popular discoteques and many local night spots have turned western. As well as affecting the night life, movie goers are buying cowboy hats, boots, and western clothes. The music taste has also changed to the tunes of Willie Nelson, Charlie Daniels, Kenny Rogers, and Linda Ronstandt.

Adorned with western attire, SHS students show their enthusiasm for the "cowboy" look.

Summer Moonlighting

It is known that students fill their summer days with a variety of activities, but what do teachers do? Summer jobs filled the days for some Spartan High teachers.

Ms. Margaret Wells and Mr. Randy Foster taught summer school at Spartan High. Mr. George Fain taught sociology at Limestone College; Mrs. Ann Moore taught reading at USCS. Mr. Doug Lowe and Ms. Susan Dean used their skills to teach basketball and tennis, respectively.

Dr. J.G. McCracken; District Seven Superintendent.
Mr. Joseph D. Delaney; B.A. St. Bernard College, M.A.T. Vanderbilt University, Ed.S., E.D.D. University of South Carolina; Principal.

Mr. O.K. Gaskins aided Spartan High by repairing microscopes.

Mr. John Derrick chose a job that was unrelated to teaching. He cleaned chimneys and wood stoves. Others involved in chage-of-pace jobs were Mr. William Pell, who worked as a staff writer for the Spartanburg Metro; Mr. Jerry Easler, who worked as a peach inspector; Mrs. Wanda Farmer, who worked for the Census Bureau; Ms. Sandra Umerhandt, who started her own commercial photography business; and Mr. Randy Foster, who worked with a musical group called Grand Stand.

Mr. Edward N. Barksdale; B.S. Allen University, M.A. Atlanta University; Administrative Assistant Principal.

Mr. Edward Bost; B.S., M.A. Appalachian State University; Assistant Principal.

Mr. Robert Gettys; B.S. Lenoir-Rhyne College, M.Ed. University of North Carolina; Assistant Principal.

Mr. Roy C. Henderson; B.S. South Carolina State College, M.S. University of Indiana; Assistant Principal.

Mr. Larry E. Moore; B.A. Wofford College, M.Ed. University of South Carolina; Assistant Principal.

Miss Jane Albright; B.S. Appalachian State University; Health/Physical Education, Girls' Basketball Coach.

Mr. Brian Alexander; B.S. Wofford College; Mathematics.

Mrs. Patricia P. Alexander; B.S. South Carolina State College, M.S. North Carolina Central University; Business.

Mr. Michael L. Allen; B.M. Cleveland Institute of Music, M.A. Case Western Reserve University; Orchestra.

Worldwide Studies

Mr. David Berman and Mr. George Fain were awarded a Fulbright Grant to participate in the summer seminar of 1980. Mr. Berman's grant was for India, and Mr. Fain's was for Brazil. Both were under the International Educational and Cultural Exchange Program sponsored by the Office of Education of the Health, Education, and Welfare Department for teachers of the world of Asian History and area studies. The seminar gave participants a survey of Indian/Brazilian history and culture. It also included an orientation at New Delhi/Brazilia with several weeks of educational field trips throughout the country.

Mr. Berman has taught history, sociology, and anthropology at Spartanburg High School for four years. Mr. Fain, who studied at the Sorbonne in Paris and the University of Madras, India, has taught European and world history at Spartanburg High School for seven years.

Reminiscing about trips abroad, Mr. David Berman and Mr. George Fain compare their adventures.

La Vie En Paris

Mr. William Pell spent a month in France with his wife and son this past summer. He flew to Belgium and while there traveled ten days along the English Channel and finally to the Paris suburbs. They also visited such famous cities as Versailles, Chartres, and Amiens. Mr. Pell and his family lived in a French teacher's apartment while the French teacher spent the month in their home in America.

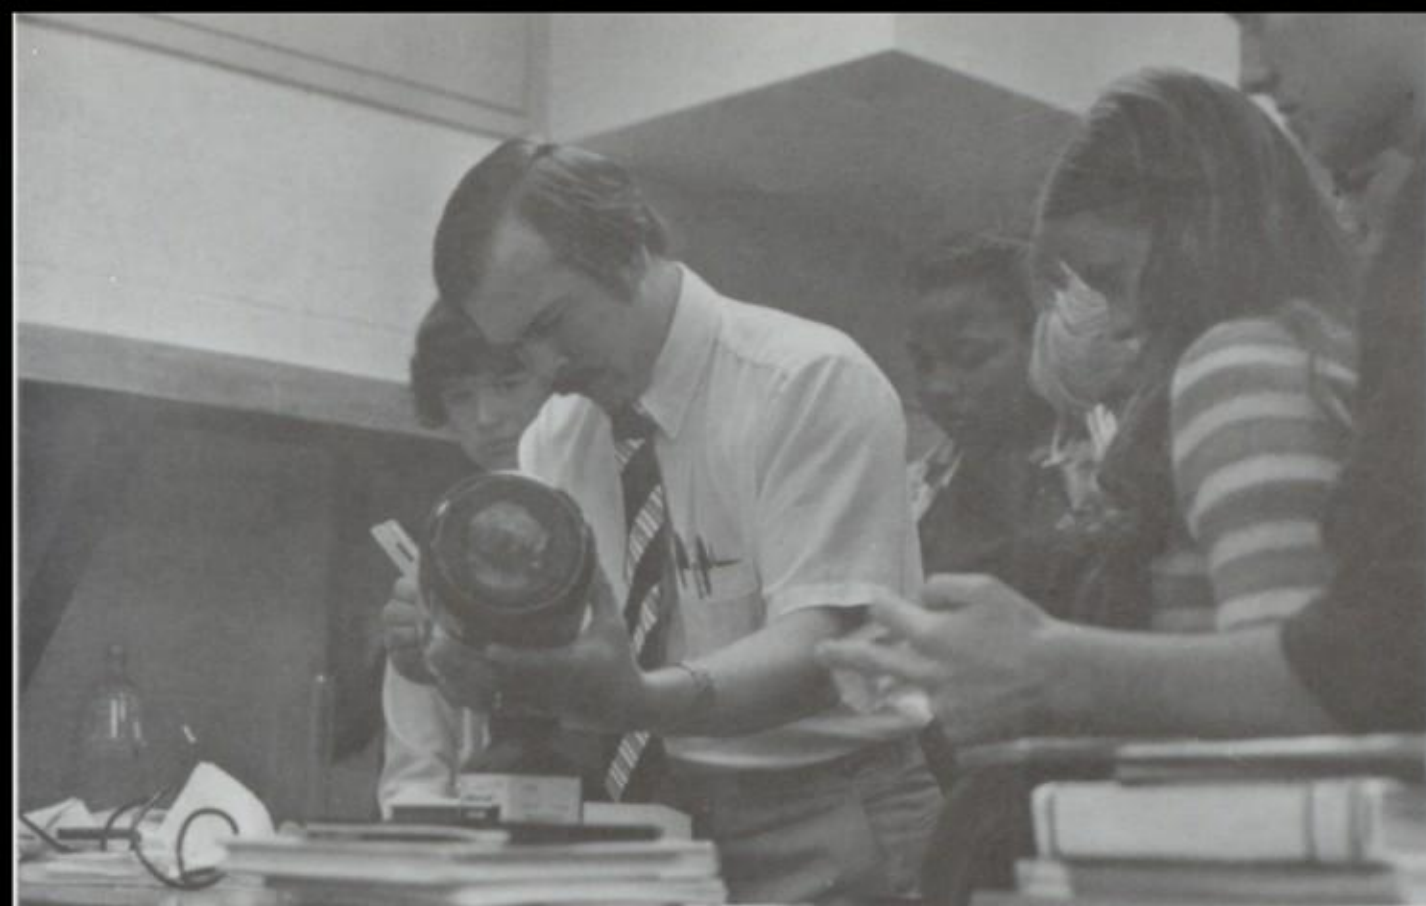

While in France, Mr. Pell noticed differences and similarities between the two countries. The inflation in France was just as bad as it is here in the U.S. For example, three lamb chops cost $6.00. Mr. Pell also thought the prices of clothes were extremely high. There was less emphasis on packaged food in France; everything was fresh, and they often had open markets.

This was Mr. Pell's sixth trip to France, and he thought it was a terrific experience. The Pells were able to get a taste of the French culture.

Outstanding In Her Field

The South Carolina Education Association is the professional organization for teachers in this state which lobbies for welfare of teachers. Mrs. Elaine Marks, a history teacher, served as president of SCEA for 1979-1980. The SCEA is a part of the National Teachers Organization. One hundred out of the twenty thousand teachers in SCEA are on the staff at Spartan High.

During Mrs. Marks' presidency, she attended the annual meeting and the national convention which was held in Boston. She spoke with other teachers and legislators, and worked with interested groups to advance the cause of public education. Also, the Congress passed the creation of the new department of education for which the SCEA lobbied twenty years. This gave the cabinet status to public education. Thus Mrs. Marks was honored in being president of SCEA this past year which was quite an experience.

Expressing feelings to her students, Mrs. Marks displays some characteristics of being President of SCEA.

Students Build Dream House

Assistant Director Jerry Steadman cleans counter tops in preparation for the Aug. 30 and 31 Open House. Daniel Morgan students did all the cabinet work.

This is the house that students from Daniel Morgan Vocational Center built. Construction began in fall of 1978.

The Daniel Morgan Vocational Center may be holding the keys to someone's dream house.

The house is on Phillips Road in the Eastway Park subdivision east of Spartanburg off U.S. 29. It was built almost entirely by students at the vocational center.

"This house is solid. We used good, quality materials. We didn't cut corners," says center administrative assistant Lonnie Holman.

The house has a living room, kitchen-breakfast room combination, family room with a fireplace, three bedrooms, two baths, a laundry room, utility room, double carport, and a sundeck.

Jerry Steadman, assistant center director, says one of the best features of this house is the amount of storage space. Steadman says this is an energy-efficient house. It comes complete with required insulation, storm windows, and doors.

This house was built almost entirely with student labor. Specialists were brought in to do the painting, finish the walls, pour concrete in the carport, and blow the ceilings.

Drafting students designed the house to match surrounding houses. Other students worked on the house according to their field of study. "Students gained experience by building this house. Their work was checked by instructors," Steadman says.

Work on the house began in late October of 1978. It was completed, except for some carpentry work, by students last year. The only thing that remains is to have the carpeting installed, finish the driveway, and plant the yard.

There are eight other lots on the school property on which students can build additional houses. The school plans to construct other houses as learning experiences for its students.

Army officials arrive at the school to help administer the career planning tests that everyone was required to take.

CPR techniques are learned by students such as Donna Meekins in Phys. Ed. class.

Instructing a class in how to use the Audio Visual equipment is Mr. Charles Carr.

Advertisements

Once again this year, the community became involved in Spartanburg High School. Even with the high inflation, most community advertisers continued to give support. Many of the school related clubs also continued to buy ads and many took humorous pictures which appeared on their ads.

The businesses which purchased ads felt that it was a good investment since Spartan High is such a large school. Many of the students shop at the stores that bought ads thus making the ads worthwhile. Many of the businesses bought ads because a large part of Spartanburg's population see the a yearbook and they felt that they can generate a good deal of business through yearbooks. Overall it was a good year for ads, in spite of the high inflationary times.

During lunch, students gather on the front steps to talk about the day's activities.

Hostage Ordeal Finally Over

On November 4, 1979, the U.S. Embassy in Teheran, Iran was stormed by a mob of angry Iranian students and the Americans inside were taken hostage. Fifty-two of these Americans were held for fourteen months. They were finally released on January 21, 1981, the same day that President-Elect Ronald Reagan took over the duties of the Presidency.

While in captivity, the hostages were subjected to mock executions, isolation cells, and late-night interrogations. Some captives spent their days in captivity in luxurious hotels while others were put into the basement of the Embassy. As one hostage said, "April was a time of hope." The militants were beginning to be nice to the Americans. Then their hopes were once again dashed when they learned of the failed U.S. rescue mission on April 25, 1980. The Americans spent their final days as hostages in a luxury hotel before boarding an Algerian plane and flying to Wiesbaden, West Germany.

When the hostages finally arrived on American soil, they received a warm welcome from the entire country with parades, yellow ribbons, and American flags. January 21, 1981, will probably remain a great day in history for it was a day of excitement. As the hostages were boarding a plane to leave Iran, Former President Carter was also leaving office as President Reagan was being sworn in.

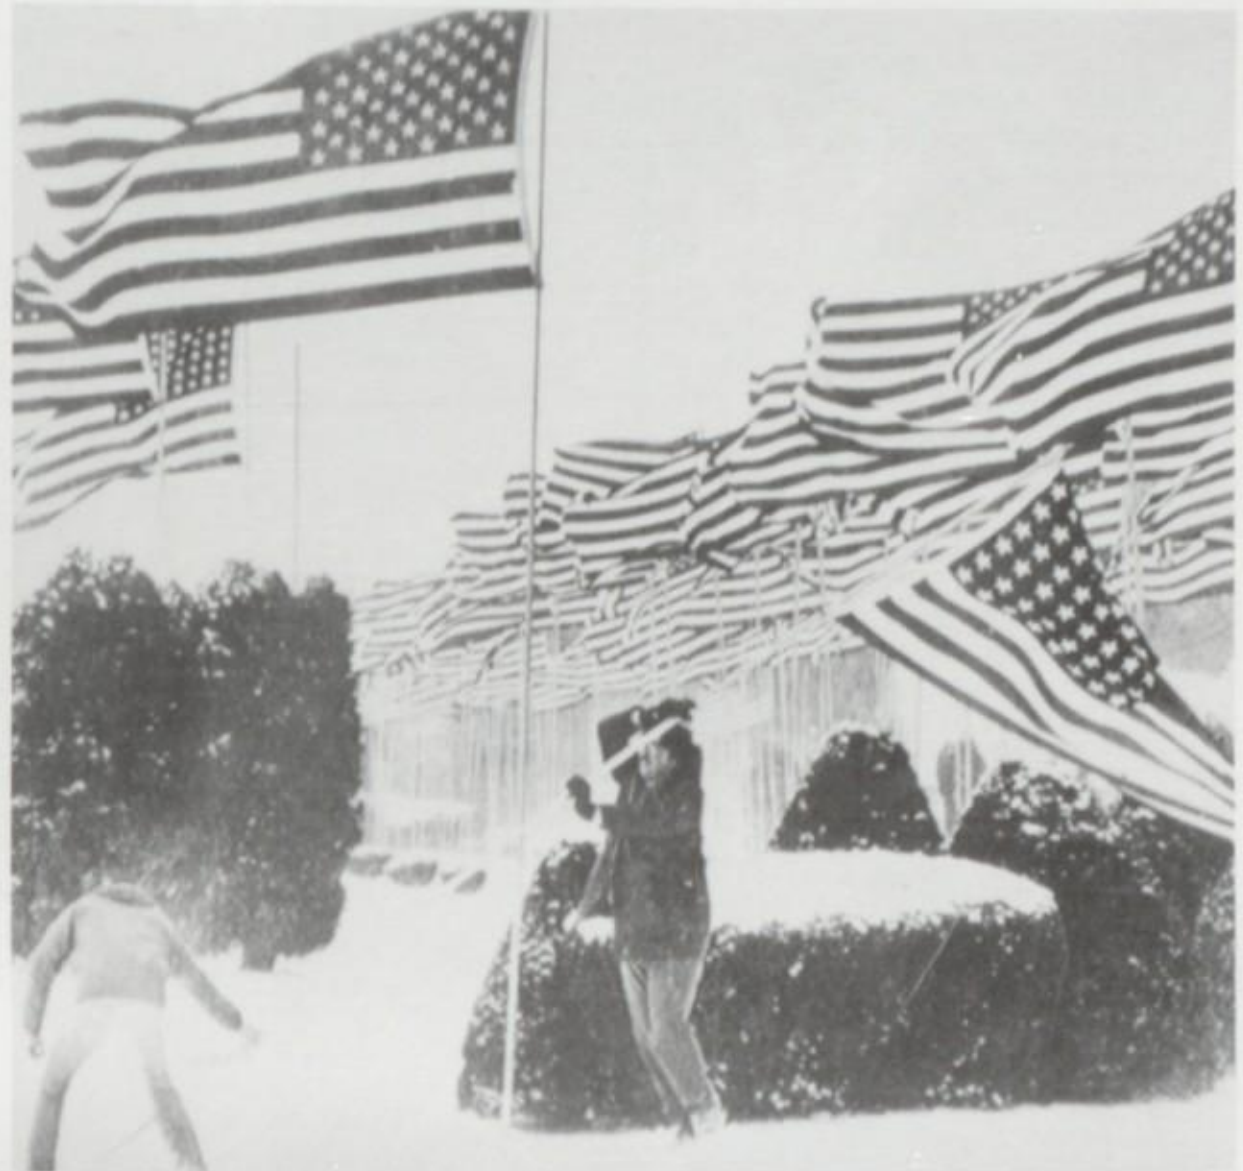

Unidentified hostages at the American embassy in Teheran, Iran, read some of the thousands of pieces of mail sent them during Christmas.

Iranian demonstrators, standing on the wall of the U.S. Embassy in Teheran, burn an American flag shortly after the takeover of the embassy on Nov. 4, 1979.

Soon after the takeover of the American Embassy in Iran, SHS students showed their support for the hostages by signing their names to a giant poster and by wearing armbands.

Another flag is raised last February at the cemetery in Hermitage, Pa., in remembrance of the American hostages held in Iran.

A Canadian maple leaf dots the "i" of the French word for thanks on a sign in front of six Americans who got out of Iran with Canadian help.

After the release of the hostages, S.H.S. conducted a flag ceremony in honor of the freed Americans. Brian West and Ed McCall took part by raising the flag.

COLOPHON

The 1981 edition of Spartanburg High School's yearbook, SAGA, was printed and bound by Josten's American Yearbook Company of Clarksville, Tennessee. Typeface for the division pages was Helvetica 37 while the rest of the book was done in Times Roman 45. Headlines were in 36 point type, captions in 8 pt., and copy in 10 point, except on the division pages where it was 12 point. Spot color used in the opening section of the book was blue T-287, and yellow P-600. The book was printed on 80 pound dull matte and 1400 copies were ordered.

The classes section members of the yearbook discuss the layouts they will use in their section of the book.

Closing

Many events helped to shape the school year. Some were unforgettable and some not as memorable. Nevertheless, the 1980-1981 school year possessed events that caused students to think and take a second look at things. The year brought many changes in the world and at Spartanburg High School as well. With the aid of world affairs, such as foreign policy and the economic situation, students became more aware of the world around them and became more involved in it.

During the Black History Assembly, Judge Matthew Perry delivers an inspiring message to the student body.

Filled with the Christmas spirit, members of homeroom section 12-85 Ann Reagan and Lori Smith decorate the Christmas tree.

An enthusiastic crowd is the key factor in having a good pep rally.

Taking out time from a busy day, principal Joe Delaney and Assistant Principal Edward Barksdale enjoy a nutritious cafeteria lunch.

In preparation for graduation, seniors Elizabeth Fortner and Teresa Martin try on caps and gowns.

During a study hall, students Kerry Comer, Jim Lassiter, and Tony Myers make use of the library.

The Varsity male and female cheerleaders build a pyramid during a basketball pep rally.

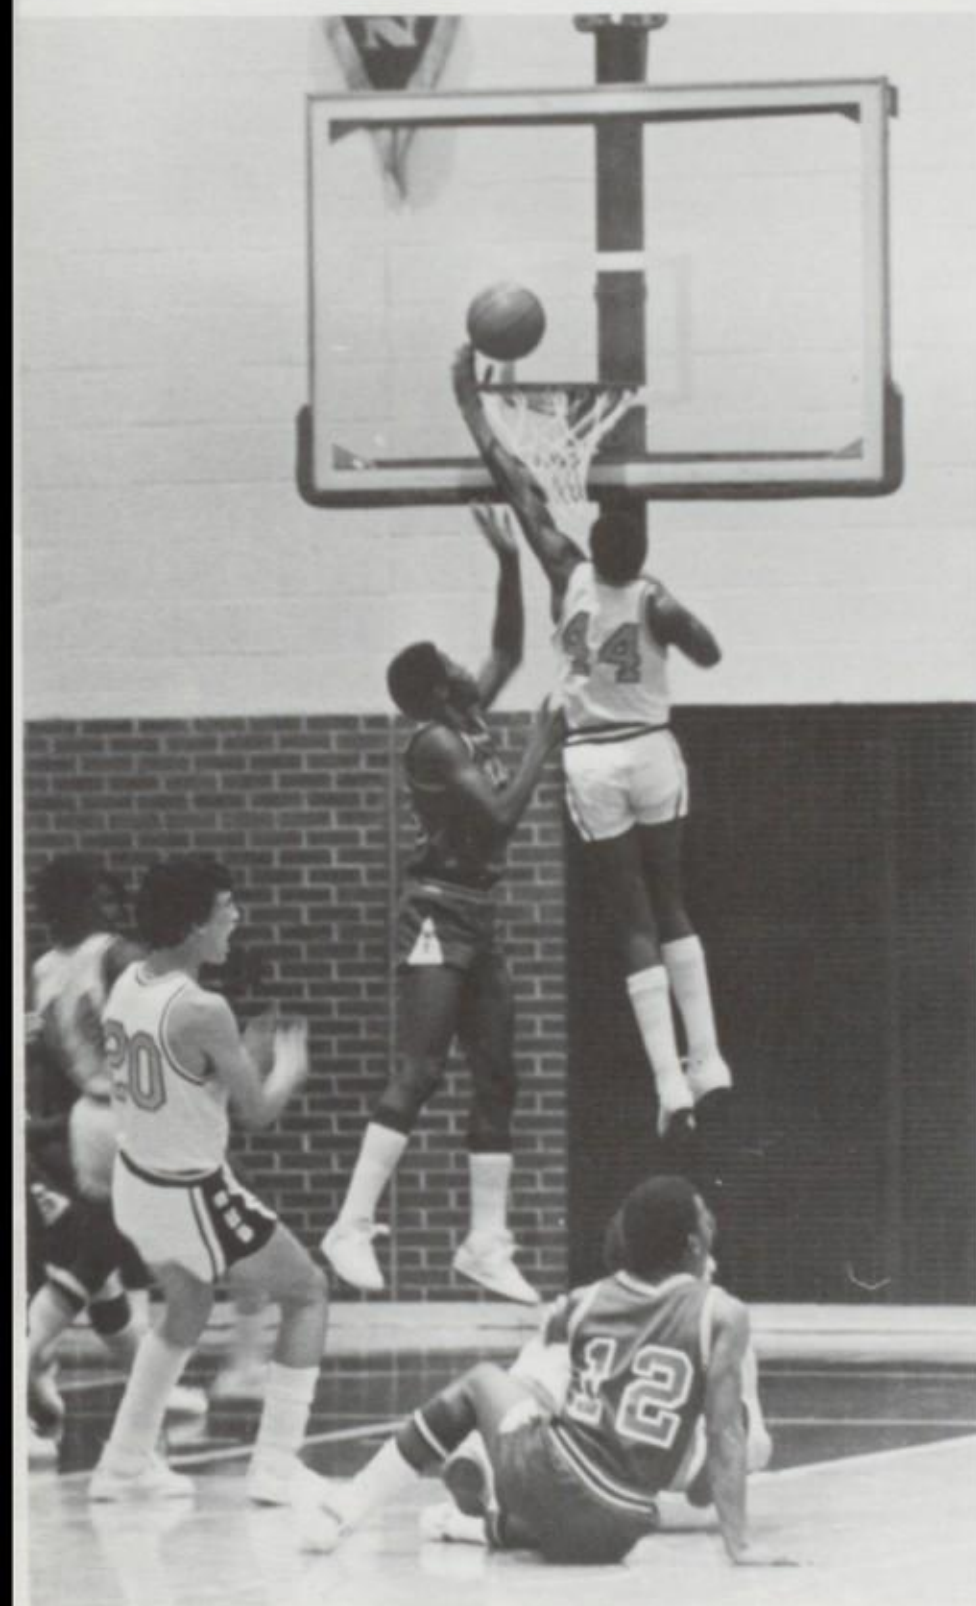

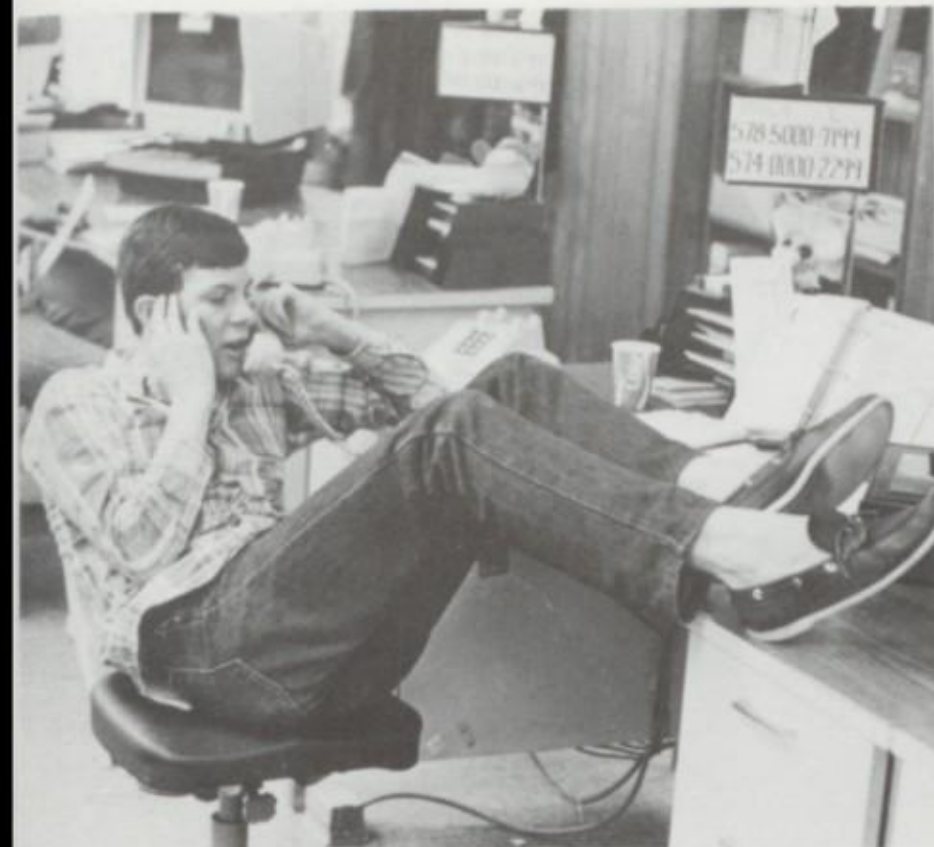

Closing Of School Brings Changes

As the 1980-81 school year wound down to a close, students began to remember the events of the past year. For the seniors, it was a special time of reliving the events of their three years of high school and thinking about their future. Some seniors would be moving on toward college, while others would be settling down into a job or even getting married.

The closing of school was a readjustment for all three classes. The sophomores had endured their first year in high school at the bottom of the totem pole and would now be responsible for breaking in a new group of sophomores. The juniors, who had finished what is known as the hardest year in high school, prepared for their senior year with excitement and anticipation.

Fulfilling a F.C.A. club obligation, Avis Weathers and Candy Anthony sell cokes during a basketball game.

A lay-up by Eric Means over the opposition helps the Vikings to another win.

Orchestra members unload the fruit which they sold as a fund-raising project.

As a stock-boy at an area supermarket, Dale Vicars has many duties to fulfill.

The S.H.S. band performs as the half-time entertainment at a football game.

As one of the obligations of belonging to the Health Careers club, students work as candy-stripers at the General Hospital.

A Time To Relive Memories

Although the end of the year was a time of changes, it was also a time of reliving past events with friends. Sophomores quite vividly remembered Orientation and the first confused days of school while Homecoming stood out more clearly in other students' minds. They remembered the theme of Homecoming, "The Last Roundup," building the class float, and marching behind the floats in the annual Homecoming parade.

Then there were the pep rallies which everyone looked forward to, because they encouraged school spirit, and enabled students to miss half their fourth period class. The football games, basketball games, the new male cheerleaders, the cross country team winning the state championship and the soccer team coming close . . .

these were just a few of the memories of the sports scene at Spartan High.

As for the clubs, some people remember going to the French club cheese party, or going to the School for the Deaf and Blind to visit with the children. For every interest at Spartan High there was a club to join. Although many people did not like to remember the Academics side of Spartan High, it was still considered one of the best in the state, because of its quality faculty and wide variety of courses.

The end of a school year always makes students reminisce on the events of the past year. Most of the memories are happy, some sad, but after all the moments are relived, it is obvious for the students to see that from all areas of the school, Spartanburg High School has THE POWER OF GOLD.
